I have a car which cost more than his house, and it's only a Dodge Caravan. Look at the 8K house just a few doors up from him. I'll bet that one is a gem.

I see that there is a home just down the street from Roger that is valued at $47,000. Man! That one must be the neighborhood jewel! I'll bet it even has hot and cold running water and a gen-yoo-wine flushing toilet.
'Course if Roger devalues the neighborhood as he does the newsgroups, I can understand.

The whole point of this thread is this, K1MAN was fined for doing the same-thing that W1AW is doing. I believe that the rules should apply to all, instead W1AW and the ARRL has never been fined and it raises questions on where is the ARRL is in bed with the FCC.
Bottom line the rules should apply ALL and no one should be exempted from them.

Well the ARRL has held over a certain amount of credit from the "old

Does this include Kiddy Porn too, Todd? Oh, wait. Sure thing. Your version of Kiddy Porn is in cartoon form and is thus legal, but it still exemplifies just how sick your warped little mind really is.
Do your parents know about your sick proclivities, Todd? Maybe they do and maybe that is why they keep you locked in the basement and away from society at large.
I wonder what your parents would think if someone were to send them the URL of your sick little site??
You, Todd, are a potential child molester if you are not already so.

You and Wiseman both belong in the same Loony Bin.

This group only became a cesspool after you, Roger and Todd dirtied it.

Way to embrace your obvious homosexuality, Davies!

Obviously the gal you claimed to be dating has left you high and dry, Wiseman. What happened? Did she discover your affinity for little boys or did she shy away after she saw the Glendale PD cars following you? Or perhaps she discovered that you have no future. Perhaps her denial could be something so trivial as your penchant for not bathing or washing your hair.
Then, of course, perhaps she wanted to date a guy who had a working toilet in his home. And there is always the thought that she couldn't compete with your love of Lloyd. Women are like that. They can compete with another woman, but to compete with a guy?

You lost another one, Woger. How do you spell Loser?

Joo Too wrote:

BWHAHAHAHAHA says the twat Davies who hid from Oris when he came knocking on his door....but then Fatass Davies ran his mouth then was a no-show at Dalton hamfest!...just like Davies, gopher face Tunder hid behind his cell phone shivering in fright out on the street in his idling rusted out white truck.

Oris even posted an account of his visit to Lloyd's HUD apartment:

I happened to be traveling through Huntsville, Alabama early this morning, I decided to stop in Athens and see just how tough Lloyd Davies was going to act when he saw me in person.

Many of you know that a few years ago, Lloyd got smart with several people in the Deja Newsgroup (now Google) and I issued a challenge to him. I told him I would be attending the Dalton, Ga. Hamfest if he wanted to continue the conversation. He said he would be there and he was going to kick my ass.

Well, Lloyd was a no-show and continued the verbal assault on the newsgroups.
He always talks tough behind his keyboard. And, I understand he is now doing the same sort of thing on the NIM Busters Board.

Well, about 8.35 this morning (December 23, 2004) I located his apartment in a nasty looking section of town. I'm a pretty good sized man, but I put my gun in my back waistband after exiting the car. I located his apartment and knocked on the door. The doorbell was missing and bare wires were sticking out of the wall. I heard someone say I'm coming and shortly the door opened with a safety chain lock still engaged. He asked what I wanted and I introduced myself and asked if we could have a conversation. He turned white as a sheet and attempted to slam the door, but I already had a foot wedged in the opening. He started shaking uncontrollably and was shouting leave me alone, leave me alone! I told him he didn't seem so tough now face to face and then noticed a putrid odor of urine and he was pissing his pants and crying like a baby. Please leave me alone Oris he said, I was just having fun and meant no harm, please leave, please. I could see the filthy floor of this apartment and the dirty floors and the stench of a grown man pissing on himself were almost enough to make me want to vomit, and I don't have a queasy stomach. Upon telling him that this time he would escape a ass kicking and not to ever get a smart mouth with me again and a verbal yes from him, I departed. That apartment complex looked like a crackhouse, niggers everywhere, filthy grounds and stairwells. Junk cars everywhere and garbage overflowing the garbage cans.

This Lloyd is nothing more than white trash that delivers pizzas and could afford to take a trip out of town if the ticket cost $5.00.

I'm sending this to a friend who despises Lloyd Davies and he wanted to post it for everyone to see just what kind of chickenshit asshole this Davies really is.

Oris Grimm

He's more like a little kid who plays with sci-fi action figures....and himself in his parent's basement where they make him stay 24/7, because they are embarrassed to say he is their son.

Junk cars aren't allowed in Roger's neighborhood, fuckwit. Unlike in your HUD apartment complex , where they are considered even lower rent apartments. Is that why you keep that rusted out second car, Davies?
When they lock you out of your filthy HUD two romm apartment you can still go to:

http://h1.ripway.com/lloyddaviessux/lloydsshitbox1.jpg

Which is what Davies drove before he got the rusted blue Ford with the body damage from his drunk driving, that he is using to and from his pizza boy high schooler's job.

Junk cars aren't allowed in Roger's neighborhood, fuckwit. Unlike in your HUD apartment complex , where they are considered even lower rent apartments. Is that why you keep that rusted out second car, Davies?
When they lock you out of your filthy HUD two romm apartment you can still go to:

http://h1.ripway.com/lloyddaviessux/lloydsshitbox1.jpg

Which is what Davies drove before he got the rusted blue Ford with the body damage from his drunk driving, that he is using to and from his pizza boy high schooler's job.

please feel free to call the FBI Need the number for the local Filed office?

or would you prefer the number for the Houghton County Sherriff?

you have but to ask and they will be provided to you

I am not a fraid of the FBI. I have done nothing of any interest to them

OTOH if you call them and make you false reports you will get the Martha Stewart treatment and spend some time in jail most likely, prehaps the same way it seems Steve is doing right now

First came the Muhammad cartoons, then the Hampster blow-up sex doll:

http://www.thesun.co.uk/article/0,,2-2006060507,,00.html

"MUSTAFA SHAG DOLL
Your own inflatable escort for your Hen Night adventures. Mustafa comes with his own penis. Blow him hard to inflate him and watch his 7 incher come to life."

(Note: No word yet if he comes with his own explosives belt and blows himself up after so-many 'sessions' - but heck folks! He's only 7 INCHES??? I thought those ragheads bottom feeder: n.

1. An Internet user that leeches off ISPs - the sort you can never provide good enough services for, always complains about the price, no matter how low it may be, and will bolt off to another service the moment there is even the slimmest price difference. While most bottom feeders infest free or almost free services such as AOL, MSN, and Hotmail, too many flock to whomever happens to be the cheapest regional ISP at the time. Bottom feeders are often the classic problem user, known for unleashing spam, flamage, and other breaches of netiquette.

2. A person who has more or less failed in life and is at peace with it.

1. An Internet user that leeches off ISPs - the sort you can never provide good enough services for, always complains about the price, no matter how low it may be, and will bolt off to another service the moment there is even the slimmest price difference. While most bottom feeders infest free or almost free services such as AOL, MSN, and Hotmail, too many flock to whomever happens to be the cheapest regional ISP at the time. Bottom feeders are often the classic problem user, known for unleashing spam, flamage, and other breaches of netiquette.

2. A person who has more or less failed in life and is at peace with it.
"He's a no-good bottom feeder!"

That's transference, Rog. You were adopted, i.e. rejected by your parents, so everyone else is adopted, huh? You're angry with others because you can't direct your anger toward faceless parents who abandoned you?

Perhaps that's why your pathetic life consists of the sociopathic posts to newsgroups and using your amateur radio equipment to deliberately ruin the fun of others.

Is this what your existence comes down to--being an angry and bitter man, friendless and lonely, lashing out randomly at others? Is this how it ends? Is this what you end up with?

Why not seek help before you waste any more of your life?

Perhaps you think things are static, UnWiseman. There was a hole in a brand new roof in December. It was patched right after the photos were taken and repaired in the Spring of 2005. Amazingly, a day before the tower collapsed during a wind storm, the roof, installed in July 2004, had no hole in it at all. Go figure! Maybe you and Wiseman would like to come out for an inspection tour. It'd restore my faith in humanity if I'd see Roger's "friend".

Additionally, a new tower was installed in March with new 144 and 432 MHz boomers. The 6m yagi was repaired and moved to a second tower. A new, larger tribander was mounted on the new crankup tower. No evidence at all remains of the collapsed tower, destroyed antennas or of a hole in a porch roof.

Now tell us about your friend Wiseman's place--the one in a narrow velley between two hills--the one which is nearly three times smaller than the Cameron home you write about. Isn't Roger/Not Roger's lot barely larger than his house? Does he get out pretty well from the valley QTH? Is the spot good for anything but QRMing domestic stations within NVIS range?

> Check it out, he leaves his xmas lights up all year around.

Uhhhhhh, Roger, the photo which you lifted from my web site was taken a couple of weeks before Christmas of 2004. Lots of folks put up Christmas lights near Christmas. Do you decorate for Christmas?

Actually, Roger, tarpaper is used in a roof repair. It goes under the shingles. Let me know if you need any additional household repair pointers.

There you go, thinking things remain static. The photo was taken over a year ago, UnWiseman.

What gives you the idea that the wooden shingles are rotten? They're Cedar--good for fifty or sixty years.

If you'd like to see a patched up, do-it-yourself job, I can arrange to post a photo of the fabulous Wiseman estate on its postage stamp-sized lot if you like.

What part did you think was a lie, UnWiseman? Was it the part about the photo being shot a couple of weeks before Christmas 2004? Was it the part where I said that people commonly put up Christmas lights before Christmas?

I've never done so. I post only with my Earthlink e-mail addee and my real name. It is something you are no longer able to do without fear of reprisal.

Cholesterol medicine pill popping? People are getting high on Lipitor?

Better scurry back under the baseboard with the rest of the roaches. They'll be turning on the lights any minute.

He's hard to see. You see, he spends a lot of time inside, keeping a low profile. If you visit a number of newsgroups, you can smell him though. You'll not see any posts from him by name or call. He tried that before and it bit him in the ass.

You are the one saying Roger is behind every post. You are the one who mentioned him above.

Well, then Anti-Dave (your anti-matter counterpart who pist under some thinking I am Wiseman again.

But thinking isn't really your strong suit.

Yours doesn't even light a milliwatt bulb.
Still doesn't change the fact you worked some out of banders.....so much for your A-1 operator status, eh?

Sort of like yours, or is it more like your idol's Hilter? Too bad for their little boys. First hand, too.

rotten shingles on the side of your broken down farmhouse before the

Colonel????? Let me guess, the salvation army. I think the military gets their officers from schools that actually teach you things like grammar and spelling. I can see how you may have gotten confused, you rode the short bus to your special class at school and used lincoln logs and colored all day giving you plenty of time to daydream about being a colonel. I hope this paragraph was not too long for you. If you have any questions about the larger words over 5 letters long, google them.

I took the sample test on QRZ.com twice and passed both times without studying, I'll bet an old turd could study all month, have the answers in

I have never denied you any rights. I have only said I think you're a stupid, ignorant, facist, asshole. You have every right to your opinions and to voice them no matter how disgusting
they may be. I hope my postion is perfectly clear.

I'm going to cut this one fairly short. Dave Heil wants to FIGHT over some perceived "wrongs" due largely to another having differing opinions than his. Cutting to the end of Heil's post:

>It's not my ego, Len. I do desire to maintain the status quo.

The desire is fine. Everyone should have one.

>I also >believe that you, Len Anderson, are inferior because you make light of >anothers dedication and make no efforts to meet current qualifications.

Dave Heil is "superior" because Dave Heil has defined himself so. Being "superior" or "inferior" is not the subject. What is under discussion is whether or not the code test should be part of an amateur radio license examination. That applies mostly to all those who _might_ want an amateur radio license in the future. It does NOT apply to those already licensed at the highest "upgrade" class...they will never be retested for anything as long as they renew their licenses every ten years.

"Dedication" is a subjective thing. There is nothing in the U.S.
laws on amateur radio requiring "dedication," no fief allegiance, just plain dry rules and regulations. Those who want to "dedicate" their lives to one pursuit are welcome to do so...those who only want to pursue a hobby should be as welcome.

>I could forgive your inferiority if you weren't so two-facedly loud >about your motivations.

Plain ol ordinary mind-f. Dave Heil doesn't understand persistence in achieving a goal of CHANGING something.

>You've made countless statements about class >distinctions, snobbery, hazing rituals, lodge halls and the like.

Quite true...merely repeating observations by myself and others, many of which have been posted in this newsgroup. So? You come to me at midnight and say it is dark outside...

>You >continue to lie about those things in that you know full well that >amateur radio is open to anyone who meets the qualifications.

White man speak with f tongue. Dave Heil hasn't understood that the morse code test is under discussion of retention or elimination. ALL those who _might_ want an amateur radio license are affected by whether or not that singular operating mode is retained or eliminated. It does not affect Dave Heil since he has achieved the highest U.S. "upgrade" license class and will never be expected to retest for anything...as long as he renews his license every renewal period.

> It isn't >open to you because you haven't met those qualifications and haven't >tried.

Wrong again. Heil does his mind thing again. A search of the Federal Register as far back as one can care to go will not find a single law, rule, regulation, resolution that bars me from doing anything in regards to any U.S. license, activity, anything.

> Despite that, you bray about wanting to change the service to do >away with outdated this and that.

Despite Dave Heil's "braying" and assorted posturing, he is simply belligerant and irrelevant at the same time with that, including what is supposed to be some kind of "punch line:"

>What's your stake in it?

Irrelevant. What is Dave Heil's "stake" in retaining the status quo?

There is NO _real_ "stake" involved other than what an individual perceives. One kind of "stake" is as good as another.
Dave Heil wants to impugn my motives claiming he is "superior."
Good luck, Dave...the pod bay doors are closing...

Gee, Dave ... since when is using a SINGLE PHRASE ("tenured foreign

The HELL it's the "total text" ...

As the subject says, Dave ... you have no class. I took some of my argument with you to e-mail ... you use the excuse that I "quoted" A SINGLE PHRASE FROM ONE OF YOUR MESSAGES to post (selected parts of) our e-mail exchange.

You are a bigger SCUMBAG that Clinton, Dave ... and I thought that

In point of fact I am KY Colonel for service to the state the poster is pissed becuase I (after steve threatened to kill me 7 years ago) I allowed this guy and Dave and steve to chase thier tails over calling the funny 5 sided building (and other places as well)

they are still pissed at being fooled, and indeed there febble little minds tuned those sentences in confustion beyond even my own hopes of confusing them

also pissed that I and and my father who somebody called about the threat came out and lied to them about where I could be found Steve and Dave are confused by the results

Not for sure, but it seems that he may be in jail for resisting a search of his home

he (or someone acting in his name) sent the CCARS a Letter listing his charges against (that I was caught on tape molesting kids) and they took it to office of the Postal inspector bot sure what happened after that but officers of the Club were assured that a through investagation would ensue

and steve hasn't been seen since a point about 4 days after that but if someone showed up to dod a search of his place I suspect he resist and get busted

so much of this is a sumise but plasible

Reward offered for a genuine (no dirty mobile homes) photograph of Roger Wiseman's castle, er, bungalow, er, shack.
Since Roger feels it is fair play to post photos of the homes and street addresses of others, then turnabout should be his reward.
After all, what is he do about it? Call Chief Stenger or his buddy the Sgt.????

It was more fun taking the test in front of an FCC examiner and passing both the commercial telegraph and amateur extra the same day .... in 1966. Yep, and radar endorsement too ... the 1st phone was taken another week that year. I needed it for my job at WROC-TV in Rochester, NY.

After going qrt in 1972, I let my tickets lapse.

In 1993, I decided to get 'em back. No study. No QRZ.com. No Morse since 1969.

Sunuvagun! Amateur extra (20 words per minute) and found out the test was in 5 hours when I called to see who or what was giving the test - right after I decided to get back in. No study, no pain, no sweat. :)))

Didn't bother with the telegraph ticket as I knew the end was coming in a few years. Why pay the price for the exam? Of what use would it be? But I did retrieve what was left of the 1st phone - the GROL (rough equivalent of the 2nd phone years ago).

Still haven't been on cw. I tried a Java translator and found I can't do the 40 I used to be able to put on paper with perfect copy. 30 would be about it and pushing real hard unless I got on the air for a week or so. 20, however, sounded slow.

This old fart, however, wouldn't have any problems at any time. The only time I had to retest was in 1964 on the general as I had done the stupid thing of learning dots and dashes. It was tough converting to sound, but I managed and passed every exam since. The real exams.

Sorry to break your happy-bubble, boys, (stress on boys), however I got a chance to attend a month long course on critical care. Leaves me with little time to be the thorn in the side that you so richly deserve.

See ya in another two weeks!

Enjoying reading your usual flailings about, though! Seems that WITHOUT me here, the level of trash and deceit is at an all time high.
Kudos to Feeble Five for once again validating everything I've ever

Not too quiet...I see that despite being "blamed" for all the off-topic trash by Mork Moron and Snot Scam and Sleaze, BKA Brian Burke, that the trash levels are at all time highs despite my 2 week hiatus...And the trash is authored by who else but the Feeble Five and the Wiseman Tap Dance Ensemble.

Gues we know where the "blame" lies now.

> >You are a nitwit, and to boot, one that cannot spell or form any semblance

Nope...Steve is not lost...Just doing more important things...not everyone can stay at home collecting welfare money and trash-talking on USENET all day...Like Mork Moron. Afterall, if it weren't for employed persons such as myself contributing TO the tax base, layabouts like Morkie WOULD have to get a job!

Hey Steve...Long time no see!

It was a great piece...Thanks!

I wonder if anyone kept count of all the "other than ARRL" sources that sang Amateur Radio's kudos from this event. I am sure that at least two of the Feeble Five DIDN'T, since both have insisted that Hams are NOT this important anymore.

Sure do love it when the anti-Hams get their noses rubbed in stuff like this.

So the POINT is that you probably had something meaningful to say or discuss (for once), but because you refuse to comply with standards of English composition and grammar, what came out was (a) garbage and
(b) yet another opportunity to make fun of you as you try to pass off your functional illiteracy as meaningful expression.

As long as YOU keep posting in Morkiese, you'll get ridiculed for

>From the ARRL Website....

Help support W1AW . . . more than an Amateur Radio tradition! (Feb 8, 2006) -- Since its dedication in 1938...(SNIP FOR BREVITY)

UNQUOTE

OK...That came FROM THE WEBSITE...NOT solicited OVER THE AIR.

QUOTE

The League invites contributions in any amount--or a pledge spread out over time to the W1AW Endowment Fund. Help to ensure that W1AW will remain the flagship station of the ARRL! For information on other giving options, contact ARRL Chief Development Officer Mary Hobart, K1MMH, 860-594-0397. Sounds to me like pecuniary interest, I mean here the FCC went after K1MAN for pecuniary interest and here the ARRL is begging for money for W1AW. It seems to me that the ARRL has the FCC in it'd pocket, if they are able to not get fined by the FCC.

UNQUOTE

Hey Toiddie Roidie...WHERE is the "pecuniary interest" as it pertains to the operation of W1AW?

"Pecuniary Interest" means someone made a profit.

The ARRL Fountation and it's support for W1AW via the Endowment Fund is an IRS 501(c)(3) approved charitable entity. Nothing in the solicitation suggests that one penny of funds would go anywhere but in support of an IRS-approved operation.

The FCC has already outlined circumstances underwhich an operator of such a station may be the paid employee of the entity and not violate this rule.

You have yet to show where there is even a hairbreadth bit of similarity between W1AW and the Maine Madman.

Idiot.

"harrament"...?!?!

The "larger pattern" is YOU continuing to act-the-fool despite dozens of people pointing out YOUR foolishness.

Part of that "larger pattern" is how ironic it is that your Feeble

Go to earth.google.com and download the google earth program and you can zoom in on 2test's little hovel. You may even be able to see all the port-a-potties lined up in his back yard that he cleans out.

That won't do. I want to see a front-on photo of the place and judging from what Dave says about it, no wide angle camera lens will be necessary.
Five rooms? 828 sq feet of living area?
That must be counting the basement, right????

Wonder why you got picked? I don't.

Hopefully this isn't one of those "train the trainer" deals. You send the guy you can most afford to lose, he isn't smart enough to pick up 50% of the content, and you're stuck with him training everyone else.
It's a lose/lose situation. Most things with you involved are.

Could have been rapture - everyone was taken except you.

Or you might be emailing from the alien training ship, which is

No, but once I made the mistake of entering a room with a bs meter running.
The needle spun around 3 times before the thing blew up, scattering aluminum foil and burn resistors all over the room :)))

Dave and Leila Heil

David E. "Dave" Heil

Married

Daughter Morgan (age 17) living in Cincinnati

Employer: U.S. Department of State, Information Management

Residence: Tanzania until retirement next year (then West Virginia)

Hobbies: amateur radio since 1963, guitarist since '63, computers, audio recording

I consider myself lucky in finding a job that lets me travel and experience the world. This assignment to Tanzania was to have been my quiet retirement tour. I was on home leave between assignments when the August 7 bombing took place. Our embassy is a total loss and we are operating from a beach front house featuring barricades, razor wire and a contingent of Tanzanian military manning sand-bagged machine gun nest in the front yard (now that the 60 or so FAST team Marines have departed). Construction continues at a hectic pace on an interim embassy that should be ready early next year.

My specialty is communications so I run the embassy comm center and am system administrator for the computer LAN as well. My career with the State Department has featured two tours in Helsinki and assignments in Guinea-Bissau, Sierra Leone, Botswana and finally to Tanzania.

I'm married to a lovely Finnish girl whom I met during my first tour in Helsinki. I have a 16-year-old daughter who lives with my ex-wife in Cincinnati. Believe it or not, I was an industrial electronics sales rep by day before joining State and a guitarist with the Big Joe Duskin Blues Band in Cincinnati by night. I called the Cincinnati area home for about 17 years before my globe trotting began. I still play music (as I did at Southwest's talent show) and hope to spend at least some of my time inretirement putting together a blues/jazz band. My other passions are amateur radio (I've been a ham for 35 years) and computers.

We left Miami for northern Kentucky/Cincinnati in early '68 and I joined the Air Force (radio op) in October of '68. I did a tour in Saigon where I ran into one of our classmates-Roger Mc-something. He had a twin brother named Carl, I believe.

Back in my Miami days, my dad was the rector of St. Simon's Episcopal Church on SW 34th Street near the dirt road that was then 110th Ave. Classmate Terry Bielecki lived across the street. My friends were Gay Harris, Steve Benson (a year behind us), Mark Hedger, Jeff Asti (who dated my sister Marti), Linda Welbourne and Nicky Hidu.

I spent a lot of my free time working at Sears in Coral Gables, performing in folk music spots and in giving guitar lessons. I also went through the now defunct Broadcast Training Studios above the Gables bus station and afterward worked as an announcer at WAEZ-FM in the lower lobby of the Deauville on weekends.

I remember a few of the class by name-Marilyn Garcia, Nada Katz, Sally Rosenfeld (?) and remember other faces. I'll have to dig out our commencement program and see if I can put faces with other names.

As mentioned, this is my retirement tour and I'll be returning to the U.S. for good in about 2 ½ years. My wife and I bought a hilltop retreat in a rural spot in West Virginia's northern panhandle. I was born about 25 miles away so, in a sense, I'll be going home. Our place is about an hour-and-a-half from Pittsburgh and two hours east of Columbus, Ohio. We get back there for a month or so each year on leave.

"A nurse poisoned 18 patients at a hospital accident and emergency department, killing two of them, so that he could "enjoy the excitement of trying to revive them", a jury heard yesterday.

Benjamin Geen, a staff nurse, deliberately took patients with no life threatening condition "to the brink of death", it was alleged."

Yeah, he'll have to do. I can't, after all, stalk his invisible,

Wow! That's quite the revelation. All sorts of good dirt there.

Dave gave guitar lessons in high school. Dave worked at Sears part-time during two years of high school. Dave attended broadcast school and was a radio announcer. Neener-neener.

Wiseman, you should find something productive to do with your life instead of just taking up space and wasting oxygen.

Dave, did you ever figure out what your fuckup below was trying to say, or did you scrape out your wifde's cunt for the yeast?

BILLY SMITH STEPS ON HIS OWN DICK THUSLY:

Billy "Dumbass who can't put together a sentence" Smith shows off those English skills, quite ironically in <VfQHf.14581$rH5.8121@newsread2.news.atl.earthlink.net>:
"That's interesting there idiot. I bet you really did flunk high school math and probably elementary too. Oh thats right, wasn't that when was in Floriduh. Spelled Florida but the DUH is for your Dumb Ass."

"wasn't that when was in Floriduh" - Billy makes good fuck up!

And yet again Brian P Burke, N0IMD, better known as
"hot-ham-and-cheese" shows us one of his two faces...

One that feigns disgust and anger at NG flamefests, and the other one that just spits more fuel on the fire.

Oh?

Such as?

Since you've now made that statement as a fact, you'll be so kind as to provide us with documented cases wherein someone I've trained, mentored or otherwise provided skills training to has failied to perform to the trained standard.

Gee, Brain...Don't see your name in the ER at ALL, as patient OR staffer.

More of Brain's Bovine Bowel Bombs.

Bliss?

You and Morkie accuse me of being the progentiator of the flames, yet it's as bad as ever, if not worse, with my markedly limited posts in the last two weeks.

Ergo even more evidence of Feeble Five Falsehoods.

Do you like "fun", Brain? Do you ask your kids if THEY like "fun"? Do you and your wife have "fun" together?

I ask since not all words mean the same thing in all languages.

In this case "fun" is "dung" in Japanese.

So much for any more insistence on "putz" being "penis" in this application. That's YOUR suggestion...NOT mine.

So, the State Dept. "Lan manager" can't figure out how to use a killfile. Who would've guess he'd rather fight and argue and try to impose his outdated morality to the newsgroups instead.

You're the one who claimed it, "velley" boy. Are you saying you just weren't even part of a "tenured foreign service" support team and you lied about being in it?

The reason for the difference is that Roger's house in the city of Glen

You share the logic powers of Mark Morgan. What I didn't write anywhere

Game, set and match, nutball. Here's the portal page for the Marshall County, WV Assessor's Office. No login or password necessary. Click on "Search Real Estate Data". Type in owner's surname and have a ball.

One can even superimpose an aerial photo on the parcel sketch.

The anti-DX location at 610 Glenhaven is quite interesting. Roger's imaginary friend lives there

Have fun.

These are the numbers of current, unexpired amateur radio licenses held by individuals on the stated dates, and the percentage of the total number of active licenses that class contains:

As of May 14, 2000:

Novice - 49,329 (7.3%)
Technician - 205,394 (30.4%)
Technician Plus - 128,860 (19.1%)
General - 112,677 (16.7%)
Advanced - 99,782 (14.8%)
Extra - 78,750 (11.7%)

Total Tech/TechPlus - 334,254 (49.5%)

Total General/Advanced/Extra - 291,209 (43.2%)

Total all classes - 674,792

As of February 14, 2006:

Novice - 26,209 (4.0%) [decrease of 23,120]
Technician - 276,516 (41.9%) [increase of 71,122]
Technician Plus - 42,216 (6.4%) [decrease of 86,644]
General - 134,313 (20.3%) [increase of 21,636]
Advanced - 73,523 (11.1%) [decrease of 26,259]
Extra - 107,484 (16.3%) [increase of 28,734]

Total Tech/TechPlus - 318,732 (48.3%) [decrease of 15,522]

Total General/Advanced/Extra - 315,320 (47.8%) [increase of 24,111]

Total all classes - 660,261 (decrease of 14,531)

Note that these totals do not include licenses that have expired but are in the grace period.

They also do not include club, military, RACES or other station-only licenses.

Note also that effective April 15, 2000, new Novice, Technician Plus and Advanced licenses are no longer issued.

Since April 15, 2000, FCC has renewed all existing Technician Plus licenses as Technician. It is therefore informative to consider the totals of the two classes, since the Technician class includes a significant number of Technician Plus licenses renewed as Technician.

Roger doesn't have rent or a house payment because Marie left him the house after she died. Not to mention there can't be much of a house payment on a house valued at maybe 30,000. Let's see, Even on a ten year fixed mortgage its probably 300 something a month.

Let's see now..... 1510 posts in 3 months..... Let's start with an -extremely- conservative estimate of 5 minutes for the -average- time it takes to read a post and type a reply. There is, of course, a high probability that you use your computer for things other than posting garbage on Usenet, like playing solitaire or jerking off to internet porn. So we'll grant another conservative estimate that no more than 50% of your computer time is wasted on the newsgroups. The result is that the average time every time you flop your fat ass in front of the computer is 2.8 hours/day, or -over- 1000 hours each year......

GOOD GOD, man...... I steam-planked a 33' sloop in less time! Don't you have a life? Get some psychological help! If you don't then your epitath is going to read, "Steven Robeson -- he finally started to live after death broke the chains that bound him to his computer."

>Steve "Always the Victim" Robeson, K4YZ

Turn off the computer, pry your ass from the chair, squeeze it into the car, drive to the nearest therapy group for wannabe-heros, then break out your hanky and cry about your problems there. Or don't. But for God's sake, spare the rest of us your pathetic lies and pathetic excuses for your pathetic life because nobody wants to hear -ANY- of
it. And I mean NOBODY, not even me.

You're finished. I'm done with you.

Consult Roger's West VirginiaThesaurus.....such as it is.
Or such as it isn't.

Roger claims that these misspellings are keyboard errors.
Not!
Mark my prediction. Within a day or two Not Roger will rebut this post with misspellings he claims have been made by the object of his warped desire and his Eternal Stalkee, Lloyd Davies.
In fact, Not Roger will respond with no less than thirty such rebuttals while using no less than four screen names and as many dialup connections.
How many fifty-something sociopaths do YOU know who feel it necessary to maintain no less than four dialup accounts at one time?

How debilitating this link must be to Underdog Wog. After all these years living in his Mommy's house to have the true value of his home exposed? After taking others to task for living in poor neighborhoods?
Hey, Rog. We all have to live somewhere and your hovel is no exception.

Now, Wogie, lest you castigate or denigrate others may I remind you that there are many of us who have garages bigger than your house? Heck, I have a garden larger than your lot.

Still want to make fun of Lloyd? You shouldn't.
You should be ashamed.

Roger doesn't have rent or a house payment because Marie left him the house after she died. Not to mention there can't be much of a house payment on a house valued at maybe 30,000. Let's see, Even on a ten year fixed mortgage its probably 300 something a month.

One can even superimpose an aerial photo on the parcel sketch.

The anti-DX location at 610 Glenhaven is quite interesting. Roger's

Have fun.

Roger lacks the intellect to realize same.

this "newsflash" is over 7 years old Mr Slit
"well folks" is not a complete sentence was the string point here but spoken english is replete with incomplete sentences "There" for example. I posted years ago that I choose to see this medium as more akin to spoken english than formal written English,

Mr Slit, Steve, Dave, et al choose to take the gravest exception to this notion. That is their right (and of course in this anybody can be "al")/ That it shows them as intolerant control freaks is also true

I added rooms? Sorry, UnWiseman, that isn't correct. Somebody added rooms, but it wasn't me. You could add some rooms though--if you had more land and if you had some money. Maybe the neighbors would sell your their places so you could expand. Awww, what the heck; the place would still be in an RF sink hole between a couple of hills.

I did add a couple of buildings, if it makes you feel better.

That's most assuredly correct.

It surely was, prior to 1975. It isn't now. What's your point, UnWiseman. Maybe your house and lot were larger in the past.

You decided to play games and post a photo of my home and property tax information on my house. I reciprocated. You called it a fake and a lie. I posted the link to the assessor's office. Your stuff is now waving in the breeze. You live in a tiny little house on a tiny little lot. You live there alone with your tiny little defective mind.

Wowsers! You misspelled "Heil" in the name of the jpeg as well as in the photo itself. That's quite an accomplishment.

Just like it isn't difficult to see you are stalking him.

I know you'll never realize how completely foolish you've just made yourself look. Going after opponents or imagined opponents is all you've ever done on Usenet. There are oodles of KC8JBO, AB8MQ, N0VLP and Whinyslit_lloydie posts archived which bear that out.

What have you done with your life, Roger? What contribution have you made to any worthwhile thing? You're reduced to posting filth on Usenet. You're a lonely, friendless figure who has no interpersonal skills, no humanity to him. You're a wasted life.

ROGER WISEMAN'S GREYHOUND MEN'S ROOM BAND

Lead vocal: Dr. Winston Oï¿½Boogie

It was twenty years ago today,
Roger Wiseman forced the boys to be gay
Heï¿½s been going in and outa their rears
And heï¿½s made them into raviniï¿½ queers.
So watch out or Iï¿½ll force on you
The act we've hated all these years,
Roger Wisemaniï¿½s Greyhound Meniï¿½s Room Band.

Weï¿½re Roger Wisemaniï¿½s Greyhound Meniï¿½s Room Band, Disciples of the Bucktoothed Choad,
Roger Wisemaniï¿½s Greyhound Meniï¿½s Room Band,
Sit back and watch us shoot a load.
Roger Wisemaniï¿½s Greyhound, Roger Wisemaniï¿½s Greyhound, Roger Wisemaniï¿½s Greyhound Meniï¿½s Room Band.
It's wonderful to be here,
But Wisemaniï¿½s full of crap,
The dirty goddamn pederast:
That fucker gave us syphilis,
That fucker gave us clap.

I don't really want to stop the show,
But I thought you had all better know,
That Wisemaniï¿½s going to play a song,
On a stickpin that he stuck through his schlong.
So let me introduce to you
The one and only Bucktoothed Choad
And Roger Wisemaniï¿½s Greyhound Meniï¿½s Room Band.

Your adoptive mother.

I've never written a negative thing, much less a crude or repugnant

Why would I need to limit my search? If all I'm looking for is Roger Wiseman, all I need do is type in "Wiseman" and hit return. Choosing "Wiseman, Roger L." is pretty simple. It isn't rocket science, Wiseman's imaginary friend.

Only if you accept that Roger/Not Roger is stalking me by posting a photo of my home, extracts from my property tax information, my daughter's name, address and telephone number, can what I'm doing be called "stalking". What I'm doing is reciprocating. Since you aren't Roger Wiseman, why should you care?

Don't have to? That simply doesn't compute.

I didn't add anything on to my home, NotRoger. "Once-small" is an interesting term. It implies no longer small. For the Wiseman residence, we could just use "small".

Or that you moved in with Marie at the tender age of 44? Most probably because everyone you've worked with got tired of your crap and you got

I'm still waiting (years later) for him to present ANY tangible proof on his USMC "career" and his "seven hostile actions."

The remainder of his newsgroup output is merely name-calling against anyone who disagrees with him.

[it's spelled either "chaperon" or "chaperone"]

His "technique" in here is to insult others, make them reply in kind, then to feign "insult" or "outrage" to himself as if he is a "victim."

You are playing into his hands, Brian. He hasn't really stated much.

1. He hasn't identified his "employer."

2. He hasn't stated what that "critical care" is (there are many kinds with different disciplines).

3. He hasn't stated any dates of this "course" other than it was supposedly a "month."

He's asked leading questions again, and in a negative manner.

He's previous stated that he has (or implied he has) "elmered" (mentored) "many hams" in achieving their amateur radio license.
Problem is, he has never mentioned their names, callsigns, or even the approximate number of those he mentored.

It's the same with his claims of USMC active duty or those infamous "seven hostile actions." All implications, no specifics.

Not "pleasant." He's given the impetus to all the other anony-mousies in here to turn the newsgroup into a cesspool of name-calling and personal insulting. That worked very well.

>Putz means penis.

In etymological correctness, "Putz" is Yiddish-ethnic meaning
"penis head" as in "one who thinks with his penis." Not a nice word. Equivalent to "dickhead" in colloquial American speech.

It's difficult to imagine him as associating with any Yiddish, yet he uses a Yiddish pejorative as if it were "familiar" to him. [he should walk up to a JDL member and call him "putz"
to see what kind of reaction results...]

The word "putz" has four letters, as do the "four-letter Anglo-Saxon" pejoratives. Because there are so few in here familiar with Yiddish, he thinks he can get away with using a "strange" four-letter word? :-)

Major Dud is still angry, still insulting others (who don't agree with him), and pretending to be something he isn't.
Life is normal.

"Hit the Road, Bucktoothed Choad (The Roger Wiseman Song)"

(with apologies to J. H. Deutschendorf)

Marshall County, West Vagina Rusted trailers, pregnant welfare mothers Folks are close there: close as they can be

Bucktoothed choad, hit the road
To the place you belong: West Vagina
There or China
Hit the road, bucktoothed choad.

Roger Wiseman dreams about guys
Greyhound stations, reeking public restrooms
Cheap and nasty, suck and fuck and run
Mouthful of stale gism, asshole full of cum.

Bucktoothed choad, hit the road
To the place you belong: West Vagina
There or China
Hit the road, bucktoothed choad.

Roger thinks of Gareth when he's reading alt dot evil
The swear words all remind him of his punk far away
And beatin' on his meat Wiseman gets the feelin'
He don't wanna fuck chicks
Anyway, anyway!

Bucktoothed choad, hit the road
To the place you belong: West Vagina
There or China
Hit the road, bucktoothed choad.

Back in prison we used to sing this song. It was about my Cell mate Woger Wiseman. It goes something like this:

WELL THE SOUTH SIDE OF GLEN DALE
IS THE FAGGOT SIDE OF TOWN
AND IF YOU GO DOWN THERE YOU BEST BEWARE OF A PUNK NAMED WOGER WISEMAN

NOW WOGER IS A FAGGOT STAND ABOUT 5 FOOT FOUR
ALL THE DOWNTOWN JOHNS CALL HIM LOOSE SPHINCTER LOVER
HIS MOTHER CALL HIM 'HOE

CHORUS
AND IT'S BAD BAD WOGER WISEMAN
THE BADDEST PUNK IN THE WHOLE CELL BLOCK
BADDER THAN RICHARD SIMMONS AND FATTER THAN NAT KING COLE

NOW WOGER HE'S A PUSSY
AND HE LIKES HIS PURPLE CLOTHES
HE LIKES TO WEAR HIS FISHNET HOSE, UNDER EVERYONE'S NOSE
HE GOT CUSTOM PINK PANTIES
HE GOT A FRENCH TICKLE TOO
HE GOT A 32 INCH DILDO IN HIS POCKET FOR FUN
A VIBRATOR IN HIS SHOE

NOW FRIDAY 'BOUT A WEEK AGO
WOGER SUCKIN' DICK
AND AT THE END OF THE YARD
SAT A BROTHER NAMED BINKIE
AND OO THAT GUY LOOKED NICE
WELL HE CAST HIS EYES UPON HIM AND THE TROUBLE SOON BEGAN
CAUSE WOGER LEARNED A LESSON
BOUT MESSIN' WITH A PUNK OF A JEALOUS BITCH

WELL THE PUNKS TOOK TO BITCH SLAPPIN' AND WHEN THEY PULLED THEM FROM THE BED
ROGER'S LARD ASS LOOKED LIKE A BLOODY PUZZLE WITH AN EXTRA HOLE!

(REPEAT CHORUS)

Billy posting as AB8MQ whined:
> <plagiarized>

You sure do, FATASS!!!!

Last Dance With Markie Morgan
(Tom Petty/?)

He grew up in an Iowa town
Had a fucking ugly whore momma who never was around
But Billy blew 'em all and he blew'em right Blowing them Iowa boys on an Iowa night

Well Billy moved down here at the age of 18
He blew goats all day, it was more than the town'd seen
Billy was introduced and the sheep started groovin'
He said, "I dig you baby but I got to keep slurpin'
...cum, keep slurpin' cum"

Chorus:

Last dance with Markie Morgan
Billy's moans as he opens wide for the man Billy feels that gerbil creepin' in
and he's tired of rushing to the ER again

Well I don't know but I've been told Markie never blows adults, he never blows old
He's tired of screwing up, He's tired of bein' down
He's tired of himself, He's tired of this shithole town
Oh my my, oh hell yes
Billy Smith put on that party dress
Buy me a drink, suck me a schlong,
"Give it up the ass" Billy growls 'cause he can't stay long

Repeat chorus:
Last dance with Markie Morgan
Billy's moans as he opens wide for the man
Billy feels that gerbil creepin' in
and he's tired of rushing to the ER again

There's pigeons down on the Square
Toadie's standin' in his momma's underwear
Lookin' down from a hotel room
Nightfall will be comin' soon
Oh my my, oh hell yes

Billy goes behind the dumpster and swallows that white mess
It was too cold to cry when he woke up alone
Billy slurped the last nutsack, he looks like Toad

Repeat chorus and fade:
Last dance with Markie Morgan
Billy's moans as he opens wide for the man
Billy feels that gerbil creepin' in

Smells Like Lloyd Davies
<Nirvana/George Harrysong/Dr. Winston O'Boogie>

Here is a song all about
A kid from the town of Athens, Alabama
Who is that kid who was anal probed
And always says I'm not fat I'm just big boned
Big boned, big boned, big boned Oh no
Big boned, big boned, big boned

Now he's mean and acting bad
I would too if my mom were my dad
He always says he'll be strong and buff
But always ends up on the couch eating cheesy puffs
Well, he has little talent
But he has just one parent, Yeah

He's unintel-ligible
He just can't get knowledge though his skull
It's hard to believe that he's not fat Can't ever get a date, how about that Big boned, big boned, big boned Oh
Big boned, big boned, big boned

Well he felt traumatized
When Lloyd's brother was circumcised
Go on a diet, He don't wanna
This little piggy loves his momma
He restarted civil war battles
And from his head spews only prattle, Yeah

And he forgets to use his brain
Oh well, I guess he is insane
Ways to make money so hard to find
What will he think of next, oh, nevermind
Who knows, who knows, who knows
Who knows, who knows, who knows

Well, he is always eatin'
And weight is what he's gainin'
Bought a kid's pubic shavings
Wouldn't stop till he got even

There was the song all about Lloyd Davies from Athens, Alabama
Sayonara, sayonara
Ayonawa, odinawa
Odinaya, yodinaya
Yaddayadda, yaaahyaaah Ayaaaaaah!

LITTLE ME, MY NUTS ARE AS SMALL AS PEARLS
YOU LIKE TO LAUGH AT ME BECAUSE I'M HUNG JUST LIKE A SQUIRREL
SOMETIMES IT BUGS ME
I'M NOT A BIGGER GUY
WHEN I WAS A BABY IT WAS EXACTLY THE SAME SIZE
BUT THERE IS NOTHING I CAN DO
'CAUSE I ONLY HAVE A THREE INCH TOOL

COME HOME WITH ME
HAVE A COCKTAIL AT MY PLACE
I GOT TO TELL YOU BEFORE WE GET PAST SECOND BASE
IN MY PANTS AIN'T NO BIG SWING
BUT IF YOU CAN FIND HIM
HE'S A FRIENDLY LITTLE THING!
BUT THERE NOTHING I CAN DO
I ONLY HAVE A THREE INCH TOOL
WHEN I'M COMING OUT OF THE POOL
I ONLY HAVE A ONE INCH TOOL

SOMETIMES I WONDER IF IT'LL EVER EXTEND
I GET SO EMBARASSED WHEN I'M HANGIN' WITH MY FRIENDS
THE LIKE TO RAZE ME,
I DON'T KNOW WHY
THEY GET ME A HAPPY MEAL AND SUPERSIZE MY FRY
AND THERES NOTHING I CAN DO
I ONLY HAVE A THREE INCH TOOL
YEAH IT'S SMALL BUT IT'S REAL COOL!
I'M HAPPY WITH A ONE INCH TOOL!

Glendale WV sissy desires to be spanked and forceably greeked with a large tool. Perfer large bald men 25-35. I am a 50 something Jewish man who has a fat wallet and is very lonely. I like to jack to Shemale porn but perfer a man who is "all man", a mans man if you will.

If you think you are the one then call me at 1-304-845-0109. Ask for Roger.

This game is best played by two.

Here's the street sign

Here's his pleasure palace:

Steve should leave the lawyering to the lawyers.

It was a nice change of pace.

Then Robeson brings the pace back to name-calling and ridicule. It's as if he couldn't let the good deeds of amateur radio go unpunished.

Poor delusional Vile. Roger doesn't have to make up his life accomplishments and continually broadcast them because he hasn't got low self esteem like you do.

Sure you do, Roger. You have lots of self esteem and you show it daily. Of course, if being designated as Asshole Of The Year allows you bragging rights, then I'm sure your self esteem has risen to new heights.

Such are your life accomplishments, Rog. You've been appointed Asshole Of The Year, are on a first name basis with FCC Enforcer Riley Hollingsworth and are well known to the Chief of Police . These are three such "accomplishments" that would bolster anybody's self esteem. Oh, wait. I left out your mental problems and proclivity for stalking. Did I leave anything out?

Perhaps somebody can fill me in here and let me know if I missed any other of your other "life accomplishments".
(watch now as Roger, in retaliation, grabs his camera and heads to Dave's house. A Little Bitch scorned is a terrible thing...)

--
Now you plagiarize? Too bad you can't even spell non sequitorcorrectly, though.

Er, Woger: It's spelled "non sequitur." Now what was that you were saying?

It seems highly unlikely that "Not Roger" will be bold enough to do such a thing. "Not Roger" prefers hiding, be it behind curtains or anonymous remailers. "Not Roger" is confrontative only above his keyboard. For "Not Roger" to sally forth and risk the dangers of an imaginary dog taking a bite from his third person leg is simply beyond "Not Roger"s scope of courage.
And if your imaginary dog were to take a taste of "Not Roger"? I'd take that imaginary canine to a Vet for some emergency imaginary inoculations. One can only guess what kinds of diseases your imaginary canine could suffer from this third person, "Not Roger".

And by the way. Thank you ever so much for the photos. You may have ruined "Not Roger's" day, but you made mine and several others, too. I will forever be in your debt.

Roger has accomplishments?

Dave K8MN

Roger has a lot to be proud of. Don't believe me? Run his callsigns through Google and read the letters he was sent from FCC Enforcer, Riley Hollingsworth.

That alone is an accomplishment, is it not?

While being forced to take his Amateur Radio tests over again, something that would cause great shame to a normal Ham, this dimwit proceeds to posit that he was randomly chosen from a pool of VEC testees and did nothing out of the ordinary to draw the attention of the FCC. Apparently Not Roger is of the belief that if one tells a lie often enough that eventually others will believe it, too. He has fooled himself, but the rest of us? Well, to put it in Texas lingo? That dog don't hunt.

Say, does your mommy still suck off the Ft. Thomas niggers at the C& D Record Bar on MONMOUTH ST in Newport? She lives in the upstairs apartment or is she in that nursing home?

So, your mail order bride preforms cunnilingus on your female dog? Or is it the other way around?

And do tell us how your daddy found "god" after being scared shitless on a trans-atlantic trip.
You sure do him and "god" proud with your newsgroup actions, don't you?

Ohhhhh. You've got an entirely new fantasy. You've seen the respect I've shown your adoptive mother. Now everyone can see (as if they couldn't earlier) what kind of thoughts you harbor. In addition to being crazy as a bedbug, you're vile and perverse.

You and I will have a nice chat the next time you attend a Marshall County ARES group meeting.

It's your fantasy. Which way would you like it? I suppose I've ruined it for you by telling that the dog is female. Turn down the lights, pull the blinds and do whatever it is that you do.

I surely do, Roger. He'd have stood up to you too.

The only place you can afford to be bold is in Usenet posts behind the cover of an anonymous remailer. You can't do it face-to-face and you can no longer do it as yourself online.

The fact is, this is an amateur radio newsgroup. I don't know of anyone who wants to read your perverse sexual fantasies regarding my wife and dog, my mother or anyone else's mother; who is interested in my daughter's name, address and telephone number or my property tax info.

shouldn't read any posts that they don't like.

They further awarded him the distinction of posting the Most Tenuous Spankclaim, claimed he was the Best Punching Bag and had posted the Most Unwelcome Comeback, and they gave him the Golden Peewee Award for most Blatant IKYABWAI. It was a Woger coup; a grand slam.

A number of years later, the NIM Busters regulars voted Woger Wiseman "2006 Cocksucker of the Year," probably not indicating a profound respect for Woger, but showing that he hadn't lost his skills over the intervening years.

What is Ham Radio?

(Preface)
It is becoming increasingly difficult to fly the flag for decency and for civilised behaviour in Radio Hammery. Even the Usenet newsgroups dedicated to the cause have degenerated into a hotbed of abusive onslaughts by those who ought to know better.
However, there still exists the fundamental basis on which Ham Radio is based, and that will never die. This FAQ ("What Is Ham Radio?") will be regularly published and will not be shouted or bullied down. It is important that those of a technical bent, who are the natural seed-corn of Radio Hammery
and who gravitate towards us to be the real novitiate, can still find us, (and know that we are still here), their fellows.

-----ooooo-----

Please remember that this FAQ is a _POSITIVE EXHORTATION_
to you to exert yourselves to join our fraternity! (If you find otherwise, then perhaps you are already classing yourself in the mediocre groups of those who are criticised in the FAQ and from whom we _MUST_ dissociate? If so - it's never too late for a re-taxonomisation on your part - there's nothing elitist about us, and we welcome all those who are prepared to put themselves
out in order to join our ranks!)

-----ooooo-----
(Article)
So,.....What is Ham Radio?

Ham Radio is a technical pursuit for those who are interested in the science of radio wave
propagation and who are also interested in the way that their radios function. It has a long-standing tradition of providing a source of engineers who
are born naturals.

Ham Radio awakens in its aficionados a whole-life
fascination with all things technical and gives
an all-abiding curiosity to improve one's scientific knowledge. It's a great swimming pool, please dive in!

This excitement causes a wish to share the experience
with ones fellow man, and shows itself in the gentlemanly traditions of Ham Radio.

Radio Hams are in a unique privileged position in that they can construct and operate their own equipment! No-one else has this privilege. Users, such as broadcasters,
the po lice and armed farces, CBers and mobile phone users have to purchase ready-made gear. Manufacturers are not licensed to operate their gear. Radio Hams
are qualified to design, build and then operate their own pieces of equipment. They do this with gusto, and also repair and modify their own equipment. This is a privilege well worth the effort to gain, and one to be jealously guarded.

The excitement that drives a Radio Ham starts with relatively simple technologies at first, perhaps making his own Wimshurst machine and primary cells. Small pieces
of test equipment follow, possibly multimeters and signal generators. Then comes receivers and transmitters. It is with the latter that communication with like-minded technically motivated people takes off. The scope for technical development grows with the years
and now encompasses DSP and DDS. There is also a great deal of excitement in the areas of computer programming to
be learnt and applied.

The technical excitement motivates Radio Hams to compete with each other to determine who has designed and manufactured
the best-quality station. This competitiveness is found in DXing, competitions and fox-hunts.

-----OOOOO----

However, beware! A Ham Radio licence is such a desirable thing to have that there are large numbers of people who wish to be thought of
as Radio Hams when, in fact, they are nothing of the kind! Usually such people are a variation of the CB Radio hobbyist; they buy their radios off the shelf and send them back to be repaired; they are not interested in technical discussion
and sneer at those who are; they have no idea how their radios work inside and have no wish to find out;
they are free with rather silly personal insults;
they have not satisfied any technical qualification
and their licences prevent the use of
self-designed-and-built equipment.

These CB types engage in the competitive activities
with their Cheque-Book-purchased off-the-shelf radios
in a forlorn effort to prove that they are Radio Hams.

No _REAL_ Radio Hams are deceived by such people!

-----ooooo-----

One such CB type is the so-called "Not-Ham". Otherwise known as the CBer-Masquerading-As-A-Radio-Ham, this type
had their background in the hobby that is CB Radio and not in the technical pursuits that lead up to a coveted Ham licence.
Easily recognised by their boasts of the criminal activity of 11 metre SSB operation, one wonders why they don't go back to the CB Bands if such bands are dearer in their hearts than are the Ham Bands? No _REAL Radio Hams associate with those who made an illegal installation of transmitting equipment before being
in possession of an appropriate licence.

-----ooooo-----

One infallible way to disambiguate the CB Radio Hobbyist
from the _REAL_ Radio Ham is to solicit their view of the difference between CB Radio and Ham Radio. A Radio Ham will perceive Ham Radio to be a technical pursuit and will perceive CB Radio to be a social communications facility
no different in essence to a land-line telephone or a GSM mobile in the hands of a 6-year-old. Thus a Radio Ham could also hold a CB licence safe in the knowledge that such a licence says no more about him than having a land-line telephone, whilst continuing to regard Ham Radio as a separate technical pursuit.

A CB Radio hobbyist, on the other hand, sees no difference between a Ham Radio licence and a CB Radio licence. To him, they are sisters-under-the-skin. Wrongly, the CB Radio Hobbyist then tries to classify himself as the equal of the Radio Ham when, in fact, he is nothing of the kind. A sure sign of a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds, or has ever held, a licence issued under the gangrenous degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme.

-----ooooo-----

One group of people who claim to be of the standard of Radio Hams but who are in reality nothing more than an apology for the failure of a CBer are those class B licensees who falsely proclaimed that they were against
the use of a Morse Test to control access to the HF
bands, until, that is, a test was introduced at their intellectual level, the intellectual level of 6-year-olds.

6 year-olds simply lack the mathematical tool kit to enable them to handle even the simplest algebraic manipulation
for Ohm's Law and thus, the disgraceful Class Ber's in the aforementioned category are not Radio Hams by any stretch
of the imagination!

Remember - A sure sign of a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds,
or has ever held, a licence issued under the gangrenous
degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme!

Thank you, Roger, for affording me so much fun. You have, via your stupidity and immaturity afforded me and several others a whole lot of entertainment. By the very virtue of the fact that you claim to be educated only adds to the humor. You claim that you have an education, yet your third grade comments prove otherwise.
Your childish pranks add to your already sad reputation and in all honesty? While I find you entertaining? I also find you to be quite pathetic.
I feel sorry for you, Roger. You really have no redeeming qualities and it would appear that you are forever doomed to a life of hiding behind those drawn curtains and spending the rest of your days friendless.
I really do feel deep pity for you. You need help, Roger.

Locking Todd up hasn't reduced the noise level. Steve has gone away again, but still the noise hasn't subsided.

The troublemakers are you and Mr. Slit. Why don't you simply stop responding to Mr. Slit (Roger Wiseman) completely? That would cut the noise level at least in half.

Wait. Don't answer that last question, because I already know the answer: You have no self control.

Another dodge from Rog. According to you, the ARES group is incompetent, the Glen Dale Police are incompetent, the woman who runs OVIS is incompetent but Roger Wiseman, filthmonger, is competent. I see.

You live a rich fantasy life. One could easily ask any of the attendees incompetent or liars. snicker

You don't seem to have the facts. It was the cross-channel trip to the Normandy beaches. Lots of men were afraid. That's a very natural emotion.

He was on the same trip as my father? Isn't that a coincidence.

after the war?

They further awarded him the distinction of posting the Most Tenuous Spankclaim, claimed he was the Best Punching Bag and had posted the Most Unwelcome Comeback, and they gave him the Golden Peewee Award for most Blatant IKYABWAI. It was a Woger coup; a grand slam.

A number of years later, the NIM Busters regulars voted Woger Wiseman "2006 Cocksucker of the Year," probably not indicating a profound respect for Woger, but showing that he hadn't lost his skills over the intervening years.

I wasn't out of my 6m allocation, Weaselman. There were French ops out of their allocation. Mr. Hollingsworth had no jurisdiction over Tanzanian or French licensees. Maybe you should move to Tanzania, though it'd wouldn't be very smart of you to share any of your feelings towards blacks which you've expressed here.

Wogie went to the Moundsville sperm clinic this morning to donate. The nurse handed Wogie a small, sterile glass two ounce container. Wogie looked at the small container and told the nurse, "This will not do. I need something larger, much larger."
The nurse, thinking Woger was bragging, came back with an eight ounce Dixie cup and handed it to Woger. Woger once again told the nurse, "No, I need something larger, much larger."

The nurse, calling his bluff, next brought a plastic bucket she had pulled from the janitor's closet. Woger looked at the bucket and said, "This ought to be about right."

As the nurse was closing the door to give Wogie some privacy she noticed that Woger had dropped his pants and was sitting on the bucket. The nurse told Woger that this is not how it is done and Woger looked up at her and said, "You asked for sperm donors, didn't you? Well, I'm donating all the sperm I gathered from the Lavender Lads last night."

5848. THE THOUGHTS OF YOUR RADIO GOD K1MAN: K5LBJ (ARRL BIG PROJECT STATION) GOES "BIG TIME" WITH K1MAN

K1MAN BULLETIN - B060215B -

K5LBJ (ARRL BIG PROJECT STATION) GOES "BIG TIME" WITH K1MAN

Dateline Belgrade Lakes, Maine, USA.

K1MAN came on 14.275 MHz. after KE9RY signed with OE8ANK at 8:30 EST on Wednesday, 15 February 2006.

OE8ANK and K5LBJ were calling CQ (they apparently could not hear each other), and K1MAN answered and made contact with both stations at the same time in hopes that a three way QSO could be established. Ray, OE8ANK, said that he was in Southern Austria, and Harry, a K5LBJ High School student, said that he was in Austin, Texas. K5LBJ (in "K1MAN shock?") suddenly "froze up cold" and totally dropped out of the QSO, not responding to several calls. K1MAN then finished up with OE8ANK and called K5LBJ back again and again. N6GJR, Carl, then called in from the Dallas area for a short QSO. K1MAN signed with him and then started the IARN daily talk show since the frequency was now totally clear. Five minutes into the K1MAN talk show, Harry, K5LBJ, called K1MAN on the telephone, not to join the talk show, but to respectfully "complain" about K1MAN "taking over" "his" frequency(1). But, being delighted to have kids(2) on "my" 14.275 MHz. frequency (hi), and in the true spirit of good amateur practice, I immediately stopped the talk show in progress and turned the frequency back over to K5LBJ who then called CQ, CQ, CQ, CQ, CQ, repeatedly.

K1MAN then checked in again and tried to get a signal report and info on K5LBJ and the "ARRL School Club Roundup" which they were working. But, the kids had no interest in such "rag chewing;" they just wanted contacts, Harry said. No problem. Harry did say that they would be on for an hour. No problem. At 9:08 EST, fifteen or so minutes later, Harry said K5LBJ was going QRT. Not an hour by any stretch, but these are just kids, right? No digital clocks in the ARRL premier Big Project ham shack???? ARRL petty hobby politics???? Perhaps the kids actually believe the prevailing ARRL "party line" that K1MAN is not a duly licensed amateur radio station????

I gather K5LBJ went QRT so the kids could attend classes and study such American fundamentals of citizenship such as the United States Constitution which guarantees equal justice for all, except for K1MAN, and due process of law for everyone, except for K1MAN, hi! Perhaps some "bible study: In the beginning there was ARRL, and the Lord saw that the League was good in the Garden of Newington, etc.!"

I am truly flattered that the premier ARRL Big Project student station(3) would come to 14.275 MHz. right after the new K1MAN talk show was announced to the world. Actually, 14.275 MHz. is a very popular special event frequency, isn't it? They say that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. If you can't bring Mohammed to the mountain, bring the mountain to Mohammed, hi! K5LBJ thus went big time with K1MAN on 14.275 MHz., in the major leagues of amateur radio.

73 and GL de K1MAN

(1) First the Boy Scouts and now the kids, right? I can see another $21,000 NAL from "Rot Riley" now, can't you? Hi!

(2) Honestly, when was the last time you worked someone under age 30 on 20 meters? In fifty years of amateur radio, I could count it on one hand with the exception of when I was 20 and talking to myself, hi!

(3) Check out K5LBJ on www.QRZ.com.

You have obviously noted that each and every curtain in Roger's house was drawn in the middle of the day?
What is this recluse trying to hide? What is he afraid of? His neighbors?
Lloyd? Stagger Lee? Isis? Dave? Lloyd II ? Chief Stenger? Sgt. Vogler?
Riley? His own shadow?

Keep those shades down, Curtains Boy. You never know when a hidden video cam might be across the street from you. And phone calls? Oh, gee. That is a walk in the park for someone to do with a mini tap in your neighborhood junction box. Some of those mini taps run off phone line voltage (others have self contained battery packs) and transmit 50 to 100 milliwatts in the UHF range. Get you scanner out Wog..never can tell when you are being listened to.
And don't bother looking at your nearby phone junction box. It is locked.
And yes, the box is metal and therefore the taps do not have a transmit range of more than a couple hundred yards.
Is there a car in your neighborhood monitoring your calls? Nope! Is there a receiver with voice activation within a hundred yards of you? Most likely.

One never knows, does one, when even a private detective could be lurking nearby?

QUOTE FROM THE ARRL WEBSITE

Amateur Radio's Role Gets Favorable Mention in Post-Katrina Report

NEWINGTON, CT, Feb 17, 2006--The Amateur Radio Emergency Service (ARES), the Military Affiliate Radio System (MARS) and the HF digital e-mail system Winlink 2000 all got positive mentions in a post-Katrina report from the US House of Representatives. US Rep Tom Davis (R-VA) chaired the panel. References to ARES, MARS and Winlink appear in "A Failure of Initiative"--the final report of the Select Bipartisan Committee to investigate the preparation for and response to Hurricane Katrina.

"Like all levels of government," the 364-page report notes, the National Communication System (NCS), "was not able to address all aspects of the damage to the communications infrastructure of the Gulf States."

"Volunteers at the Montgomery, Alabama, Red Cross volunteer marshaling center--Dave Hyatt, K1DAV of Torrington, and Dave Wilcox, K1DJW, of New Hartford. Sarratt spent more than a month processing Amateur Radio volunteers for deployment to the Gulf Coast.

"MARS was cited for its role as part of the Shared Resources High Frequency Radio Program (SHARES), an emergency federal communication system put into play when other resources are unavailable. The report says that "within days" of Katrina's landfall, NCS called upon more than 430 SHARES stations across the US to, among other things, assist first responders conducting search-and-rescue missions by relaying information to government agencies, by relaying logistical and operational information among FEMA EOCs in Georgia, Mississippi and Louisiana, and by handling health-and-welfare messages between volunteer agencies in Georgia and the American Red Cross national headquarters.

"Additionally, the NCS coordinated the frequencies used by the nearly 1000 Amateur Radio Emergency Service (ARES) volunteers across the nation who served in the Katrina stricken area providing communications for government agencies, the Red Cross and The Salvation Army," the report continued. "Emergency communications were conducted not only by voice, but also by high-speed data transmissions using state-of-the art digital communications software known as Winlink."

The report further noted, "In Mississippi, FEMA dispatched Amateur Radio operators to hospitals, evacuation centers, and county EOCs to send emergency messaging 24 hours per day. It further cited comments from Bay St Louis Mayor Edward A. "Eddie" Favre that Amateur Radio operators "were especially helpful in maintaining situational awareness and relaying Red Cross messages to and from the Hancock County (Mississippi) EOC."

According to the report, radio amateurs at airports in Texas and Louisiana "tracked evacuees and notified families of their whereabouts," while the Red Cross "deployed Amateur Radio volunteers at its 250 shelters and feeding stations, principally in Mississippi, Alabama and Florida."

The Salvation Army, the report pointed out, operates its own system of Amateur Radio volunteers known as SATERN (Salvation Army Team Emergency Radio Network). "During the Hurricane Katrina response and recovery effort, SATERN joined forces with the SHARES program and received over 48,000 requests for emergency communications assistance utilizing federal frequencies made available via the SHARES program," the report noted.

"The extent of destruction and damage to the communications infrastructure and services caused by Katrina exceeded that of any other natural disaster experienced by the Gulf Coast states," the report concluded. "Simply put, Katrina's devastation overwhelmed government resources at all levels."

"A Failure of Initiative" asserted that the loss of power and the failure at various levels of government "to adequately prepare for the ensuing and inevitable loss of communications" hindered the hurricane response "by compromising situational awareness and command and control operations."

"Despite the devastation left by Katrina, this needn't have been the case," the report stressed. "Catastrophic disasters may have some unpredictable consequences, but losing power and the dependent communications systems after a hurricane should not be one of them."

Where?

He was right.

You have no self control.

The fact that you continue to bomb the list with your lies, deceit, sexual perversion and other misconduct in my absence, which you have completely attributed to me in the past, is evidence that you ARE out of control.

You ARE your own worst enemy, Mork.

of course they did

but at least you tried posting on radio for a change

I wonder if you will premit any discusion of the subject

nothing viods the basic premise that TI and other have said for years

the over all Katrina reponse was in negitive numbers

the ARS response was beter by comparision a 2 or 3. and given the colapse in many of real governemtn and society likely could never have been beter than roughly a 5

But all the deetails show we could have done better, but no discusiion of this is premitted

Nature placed the ARS where we basicaly had to look good relitively, we were playing laong the keystone cops, hell Fox News did a better job of helping Katrina victums than the offical response

Little Lloydie tried to say there was a webcam in the empty house across the street from Roger's. He swore an empty, under construction house had a webcam in it. So much for his voice activated illegal wiretap. Little Lloydie couldn't pass the General license test much less rig up any wiretaps. But then, Little retard "Not" Lloydie thinks he has an army of "daleks," too.

The ARRL is now a political organization.
K1MAN is trying to become the new political organization.

If anyone wants to help further the cause of ARS, they should join a local club or just make a donation to a local club or the Foundation for Amateur Radio.

Your money is better spent close to home, rather then lining someone's pockets!

Ok lets cut the bully shit, First off K1MAN is LEGAL! until the FCC makes a FINAL ORDER on his his fined he can legally be on the air. The Fucking Asshole Radio Relay League and their little members are pushing this shit that he's operating illegally, which is not true. As for K5LBJ, they need to learn that they don't own any frequencies, and if the frequency is not being used then anyone can use it. This bull shit idea of well were sitting on the frequency, and although were not on it, were still using it, and that's what the vast majority of amateur operators are doing and this bullshit practice needs to stop.

I'd have posted Roger's/your accomplishments? There don't appear to be any.

On the other hand, there's a lengthy list of Roger's/your infamous why not treat us to a few of them?

Because it's a fact, anyone who reads the FCC rules and regulations will tell you that. I messed around enough with the FCC enough to know both in Amateur radio and in regards to pirate radio. Untill a FINAL ORDER is issued he can legal use his station. K3VR will tell you that and so will Keith Lamonica W7DXX who is a lawyer.

Everybody knows that's where you were this weekend, and that you were locked in the basement on account of that shemale porn you had been posting to NIM Busters.

I am not in Defense of K1MAN.

I have been licensed since 1967 and W1AW Has always Came right on FREQ with Code practice/ Bulletins. With High power .. Never any considerstion for Who was already using the FREQ. No one at W1Aw was checking the FREQ Before Transmitting .

Why Doesn't The FCC take away the club license for W1AW ?

I sat Treat Every licensee The SAME !

Has W1Aw Cleaned their operating Practices ? (I have not turned on My HF gear since 1997) So they may have Cleared up There OWN Transmissions

May be, but if they're not a lawyer, their opinion is worthless, like yours, because you are NOT a lawyer.

>I messed around enough with the FCC enough to know

May be, but a couple of passing experiences with an agency, irrespective of field, is only good for telling stories. It doesn't lend credence to your "legal" opinions, because you are NOT a lawyer.

>Untill a FINAL ORDER is issued he can legal use his station.

May be, but even if that is settled law, and it remains undemonstrated in this thread that it is, your pronouncement doesn't make it so, because you are NOT a lawyer.

>K3VR will tell you that and so will Keith Lamonica W7DXX who is a lawyer.

May be, but you can't, because you are NOT a lawyer.

And how nice of you to put words in their mouths. They should see a lawyer, but it won't be you. Why? Because...

no I said I had not been tested for t in Michigan, and I stated that

from that you choose to ASSUME I had not been tested for it recently

In fact when I lived in Illinois I would take a test outside Illinois, Dumbass, it don't take a lawyer to read the rules. I've been active both with the FCC and the House and Senate Subcommittee on Telecommunications in regards to FCC rules and regulations and FCC abuse of their on rules and regulation. The fact is the FCC MUST issue a FINAL ORDER before FCC can actually be shut down. The FCC tried to shut down some pirate radio stations down a few years ago, but the court throw out the FCC injunction because the FCC didn't issue a Final Order. Under the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) a government agency must have Administrative review of any rule or violation, in which those accused of violating the rule can raise challenges to the violation, including Constitutional ones. After the Administrative process is done the accused can appeal to the US Court of Appeal and the US Supreme Court. K1MAN was give a NAL, a NAL is not a final order, the Fucking FCC will tell you that, until a final order is issued and all his LEGAL avenues he can continue to operate his station. The FCC can go to the courts and have the courts stop him while the administrative procedure and legal process is going on, but 1. they haven't done it and 2. they have to show why it's in the public interest and what harm would be caused by him remaining an operator. I would suggest you read PART 0, Part 1 and Part 2 of the FCC rules and regulations, it don't take a fucking lawyer to read plain language rules.

So the FCC is forced to issue a final order and can then shut itself

No the FCC must issue a FINAL ORDER before they can shut K1MAN down, this bullshit idea that an NAL is a FINAL ORDER is that, Bullshit. Ham Operators have it in their head that once you get a NAL it over, but that not true, there is LONG process and sometimes can take up to three to five years before it's all done.

to "know" each other in order to be categorized together.

Slap yourself in the face for being two-faced again, Mork. I've been trying to "read" the past two weeks going's-on here, and I'll be darned if I see anything that's "radio" from you.

> I wonder if you will premit any discusion of the subject

Since you made it adversarial in only two sentences, I think the question belongs in YOUR lap, Mork, not mine.

> nothing viods the basic premise that TI and other have said for years

What? TI? What's a viod?

> the over all Katrina reponse was in negitive numbers

Not as far as Amateur Radio, MARS or SHARES goes it isn't, Mork.
That's what the peice I quoted was addressing...Nothing else.

There's always "better". Even God tried to wipe the slate clean and try again. Why should mortals be any different?

Who said so?

> Nature placed the ARS where we basicaly had to look good relitively, we

Somewhere in there was a "thought", but I wonder what it was....Work on that English composition, Mork!

So far, there's not been one word of criticism for the response by ARES, MARS, SHARES, etc other than "why can't we got more guys like you".... Even CAP's deployment of ALE-enabled HF systems got gold stars.

So other than refering to FEMA or the State of Louisiana agencies, just WHO were YOU talking about? The day was certainly carried by volunteers, that's for sure.

Oh, and that's a crude Icelandic blog you put up on blogspot. Real Wrong. Gopher face Tunder hid out in his idling rustbucket truck, ready to make a quick getaway and hid behind his cell phone. He didn't have the courage to step down from his truck and knock on Roger's door.

Lardass outs himself. Oris did visit you, fatty. And you ran your mouth about him before and was a no-show at Dalton hamfest.

Daugherty is an Icelandic name. There is even an Icelandic coat of arms registered for Daugherty. The ancient Daugherty family was noted for starting up the tradition of carrying "manhood stones" for long distances to prove one's strength. If you were from Ireland, you'd be named "O'Dochartaigh."

Didn't you lose your last ISP when someone took exception to razor laced dildo comments? It probably isn't a good idea to repeat that mistake, even if the thought does make you horny.

In closing, let me say that I'm shocked that you don't know where the Taylorville Icelanders' Club holds its meetings. Check the yellow pages and call the First Wiccan Church of Iceland.

It is O'Dochartaigh, as a matter of fact I've posted on here as O'Dochartaigh a number of time. I've been to my family home in Ireland and have done a lot of research on my family. My family is part of the Ui Neil Dynasty, One of the oldest nobilities in europe and my family came over from ireland in 1895 and their name was americanized to Daugherty.

No some dumbass was using blogger.com mailing system and sending some mentally retarded amateur operator threatening letters. I say mentally retarded because he apparently can read the headers and some of those threatening letters he wouldn't post, leading me to believe that they were fake, probably sent to himself by him. If it makes you horny perhaps you can go butt fuck wiseman, that way he'll stay off my blogs

Sure it's easy...You're a pervert and they don't want to let perverts get their hands on innocent children. That's not only the law, it's good common sense.

You DO have LOT'S in common.

Oh, NO, Morkie! You underestimate yourselves!

Four of the five of you has expressed not only disdain, but profane disdain for Amateur Radio operators, even though 3 of the five of you are licensed. Brain escape's that noose, but not by much...He still insults other Amateurs with his mistruths ABOUT Amateur Radio.

Each of you have been caught in numerous baldface lies about Amateur Radio in general.

Two of the five of you boldly support perversion, and I have my suspicisions of two others. Lennie's the only one who escapes that, and only because I doubt he's got the testosterone left to do anything about it anyway...

Three of you have supported violation of federal rules and regulations at one time or another. One of you has already been convicted at the federal level and two others face the possibility.

We are "obsessed by spelling issues" because your fractured English and functional illiteracy make it difficult to make a lot of sense out of your drivvel. You THINK you're expressing yourself effectively, but in most cases it's just humorous quacking.

Nope. All one needs do is scroll back in this thread alone and see how you've acted, That you changed the subject line already is proof as to who's "hijacking" what, Morkie.

> you were trolling I decide to bite

Nope. I quoted a piece that demonstrates that Amateur Radio >>>IS<<< the resource that I and others have stated it is.

YOU are the one who started in on the flamefest.

trash.

Nope. None of what was in the opening post was any of my doings, Morkie, other than to quote it.

And I quoted it verbatim including the source and author.

Sure I am. I just want you to compose it in ENGLISH so we can ALL understand it!

That you demand that the rest of the world learn Morkiese is the ultimate in arrogance and selfishness.

They weren't talking about Amateur Radio there, Morkie! They were talking about the communications INFRASTRUCTURE! They were talking about cell towers, fiberoptic lines, Public Service repeaters, etc!

Idiot!

Morkie, THAT "sentence" alone is a prime example of why EVERYONE, myself especially, points fingers at you and laughs.

Ity doesn't make ONE BIT of sense!

And the bottom line truth is you're just too stupid to realize

That's not right. The O'Dochartaigh official web site at http://www.odochartaigh.org says that the American version of the name is "Doherty." Apparently you're making stuff up again.

Wiseman was posting on "THE WORLD OF THE INTELLIGENTSIA" no doubt, along with all of the other mental giants who inhabit your system.

The only person who routinely mentions daleks is N0VFP, but I'm not that Lloyd. Even worse, the person who is posting as N0VFP isn't that Lloyd either; he's Woger Wiseman, Lloyd's most obsessed stalker.

All of this will become clearer to you if manage to stay free for any length of time and do not get locked in the basement again by your parents. Enjoy the sunshine.

Hence the term "...if you have the stones..."

No...It's Daugherty. So says your birth certificate and federal documents that you've signed.

You've MISREPRESENTED yourself as "O'Dochartaigh" on several occassions.

I'm surprised Ireland didn't declare war after you were there. I am sure those brown stains you left behind mar all the beautiful green.
Anyhow, just how many of your family were out of prison to "research"...?!?!

Ah, yes, one of the pipedreams of every trailer trash punk in the

I say the "mentally retarded amateur radio operator" is the one claiming to be from a noble family in Ireland.

ARES is part of the NCS, at least it says so in the stuff I reecently received from ARES trying recruit me into thier ranks

the quote was the NCS(including ARES) could not function at first due the lack infrastruture

personaly I disagree with the assement but it was certainly ade (personaly I think the failure of the NCS{including ARES} to function was more due to being unable to find officiails to talk comunicate with, but that is another matter)

Hey, Lardass, maybe you shouldn't have pissed so many people off, fatass. Speaking of ordering pizzas, YOU ordered some from Pizza Hut and Papa John's as Roger Wiseman.

No...What I HAVE "made plain" is that you post jibberish and pass it off as literate. It's not. Most of your "stuff", even when it has some validity to it, comes off as stupid, arrogant or insulting just by virtue of your failure to communicate clearly.

Everyone here's told you that at one time or another, yet you refuse to take a hint. Even your Feeble Five colleagues have tried to tell you at one time or another that your jibberish is your biggest failing.

OK, Morkie...I TRIED to get you to pay attention:

QUOTE:

The National Communication System (NCS) is a confederation of federal agencies and departments established by the Presidential Memorandum of August 21,1963. The mission of the NCS is to insure that the most critical telecommunications needs of the Federal Government can be met in any possible emergency, ranging from a normal situation to national emergencies and international crisis including nuclear attack, while at the same time, achieving the most effective and economical fulfillment of the day-to-day telecommunications requirements. The Manager, NCS, develops plans, standards and procedures for the management of Federally owned and leased telecommunications assets during disasters and emergencies declared under the Disaster Relief Act of 1974 (Public Law --93-288). The NCS administers a joint restoration priority system with the FCC to assure that available telecommunications resources are used to meet the most critical requirements under all conditions. The NCS is also given primary responsibility for implementing Presidential Directive 53, National Security Telecommunications Policy, under the direction and guidance of the National Security Council.

UNQUOTE

> > Idiot!
> of course anyone that disagrees you call an idoit

No, I call anyone who has their errors pointed out to them three times yet still insists on ignoring their error an idiot.

The CITED REPORT refered to the FEDERAL National Communications System...NOT the "NCS" of Amateur Radio relevance.

The AMATEUR RADIO "NCS" is NOT nor ever WAS responsible for "...address(ing) a aspects of the damage to the communications infrastructure of the Gulf States."

My previous assertion of you being an idiot remains factually intact.

So EVERY post wherein YOU refer to me as "Stev", "stvie", "stvie"
etc etc is a "forgery" per YOUR "standards.

Being "honest" about being a pervert does not undo the fact taht you're a pervert.

And one act of "honesty" does not undo the tons of other lies you've uttered.

Sure I am. You're a pervert. See...Blunt, to the point, and absolutely honest.

Where was the mispelling, Morkie?

Or was this yet one more of your "I Can't Anser The Post Since It's All True" diversions?

Seems to be the point in case.

Not necessarily. And besides, that's NOT why you're in the same

Sure it's easy...You're a pervert and they don't want to let perverts get their hands on innocent children. That's not only the law, it's good common sense.

Oh, NO, Morkie! You underestimate yourselves!

Four of the five of you has expressed not only disdain, but profane disdain for Amateur Radio operators, even though 3 of the five of you are licensed. Brain escape's that noose, but not by much...He still insults other Amateurs with his mistruths ABOUT Amateur Radio.

Each of you have been caught in numerous baldface lies about Amateur Radio in general.

Two of the five of you boldly support perversion, and I have my suspicisions of two others. Lennie's the only one who escapes that,
and only because I doubt he's got the testosterone left to do anything about it anyway...

Three of you have supported violation of federal rules and regulations at one time or another. One of you has already been convicted at the federal level and two others face the possibility.

6117. The Unbalanced Mr. Wiseman

I informed my wife of some of Roger's/Not Roger's posts of the last twenty-four hours during our ride home this evening. The one he posted (as me) on alt.west-virginia bothered her enough that she insisted that we pay Wiseman a visit to discuss the material he is posting.

We parked our car in front of his home at 6:25 PM. It wasn't quite dark, but the living room lights were on. My wife rang the bell and there was no response. She rang again and we heard footsteps crossing the room. The light shining through the peephole in the door extinguished as Roger peered out, but the door didn't open. He moved away from the door and the light from the living room shone through the peephole again. My wife rang the bell again and said, "Coward" loud enough for anyone inside to have heard. We stood on the porch for another few moments and returned to the car. Neither Roger nor his imaginary friend appeared.

It seems that the unbalanced UnWiseman isn't the bold, fearless type he portrays in his Usenet filth postings.

Roger is a humbug.

Jewish? I've never claimed that you're Jewish. I don't even state that you're Christian. I just claim that you have a Celtic cross on your front door--the door that doesn't open despite repeated rings of your doorbell.

What are the odds that someone who posts the stuff you post is involved in Christianity?

How can I be stalking you if you claim that my story is bull and a lie?

There are all kinds of reasons for coming to someone's door. I outlined a very legit reason. I had to talk my wife out of going straight to Sheriff Gruzinskas' office after leaving your place. If these posts continue, we'll have to do so. You'll remember that I do what I say I'm going to do.

Sure, Roger. Your secret is safe with me.

You continue to underestimate people. As a word of advice, I'd crawl Whinyslit Roger wrote his usual ill informed psychobabble. Actually the DUH is what a ill educated dumbass like you says when you try to spell Florida. Which I have always been able to spell Florida. Of course, your analytical skills are lacking which shows what a imbecile and total jackoff you really are.

You sure haven't been able to write a complete sentence. Here's an example, Lardass /Toad

Billy "Dumbass who can't put together a sentence" Smith shows off those English skills, quite ironically in <VfQHf.14581$rH5.8121@newsread2.news.atl.earthlink.net>:
"That's interesting there idiot. I bet you really did flunk high school math and probably elementary too. Oh thats right, wasn't that when was in Floriduh. Spelled Florida but the DUH is for your Dumb Ass."

"wasn't that when was in Floriduh" - Billy makes good fuck up!
^^

This is the portion of your screw up that is especially funny, DUMBASS.
Now, it's too bad you flunked out of high school, isnt' it, GED boy.

Not at all. We wanted to talk to him. By the way, why and how are you involved? In fact, since you're Roger's imaginary friend, how could you know a thing about whether I visited Roger this evening?

...and yet you, Roger's imaginary friend, got the word in less than an hour and are sitting here ready to defend him. How very, very odd that is.

This time, there'll be no story about some guy who left his truck running and who was afraid to set foot on your porch. There's just Roger Wiseman, afraid to face the woman he'd been posting vile filth about. Roger stayed on the inside, quaking. I don't blame you for being afraid of her.

This week hasn't worked out very well for you. You post a photo and some fellow's property tax info and whaddya know--photos of your house and your property tax info show up. You make vulgar remarks about a fellow's wife and there she is on your front porch and you won't even open the door. Your stock has fallen several hundred points in a very short time.

You haven't enough self-control to stop your madness so you shouldn't be too surprised when the law shows up, especially in light of your alt.west-virginia post where you posed as me.

You continue to underestimate people.

Morkie, you IDIOT...ARES is NOT part of the "National Communications System".

ARES participates in and utilizes the services of the >>>National TRAFFIC System<<<, a program established by and operated by the American Radio Relay League....NOT the federal government!

The NCS could not function because of FAILED infrastructure.

THAT is where the ARES comes in.

The NCS is the police, fire, EMS, public communications nets, etc....NOT AMATEUR RADIO!

I love to pop my pimples
It's what I like to do
I love to pop my pimples
As I drink my Mountain Dew

People always tease me
About my zit filled face
They say I make them queasy
It makes me feel out of place

I love to squeeze my pimples and when the pus is about to explode
I aim it at mean people and laugh and yell,"Here, have a pus load"

I love to pop my pimples
It's what I like to do
It really helps pass the time
at my job in fast food

If a customer is mean to me
I know exactly how to get him back
I pop one of my many pimples
some special sauce for his Big Mac

So if you are ever mean
Remember the words that I have said Because this zit faced loser
will pop some pus toward your head

Hi Lardass. You aren't very smart, you can't even steal convincing lies.
How it must suck to be 32 years old and still be a virgin. But then you play Star Trek and Dr. Who and sit on your fat ass and whine on the internet about another man. You make up photos of "Roger" and post them on the Yahoo personals and try to pass them off as the real thing. Your imaginary friends don't count in this discussion, you fucking retard.

You really do come across as a total whining bitch. This is probably the reason why you never have gotten laid. Women want men, they don't want whiny little girls. If you were to actually act like a man, you would have no problem getting some snatch. But you are nothing but a 6 year old kid in a 32 year old body.
You are the dumbest asshole on this planet if you think you are actually fooling anybody with your aliases. You go around whining under two dozen different names and hide posts on a message board because you are just little whiny little cunt deep down inside.

You fucking imbecile, you are a fucking bald, obese retard who couldn't get a charity fuck from the fat and ugly and oh so desperate christian chicks at a so called chrsitian retreat. You fucking have done this "pattern" before of "I have a girlfriend" and you always fuck it up. One would think you would learn from your goddamned mistakes with getting nowhere with women, but no, you stick with your stupid ideas. You don't go around asking a girl you just met to marry you. It SCREAMS "I'm DESPERATE." When she finds out you have no fucking experience fucking, she''l drop you like a hot potato. There are no timelords, dumbass, they are fictional. Just like you ever getting laid, that's fictional too, you fucking mentally ill retard.

In those days there were those who continued to laugh their asses off at the king of knob jobs in alabama as Lloydie has come to be known. There were also those who instigated and spread rumors for the king of knob jobs in alabama to cover the truth.

And there were others who had actual pictures of the king of knob jobs in alabama laying down with other men. When Lloydie aka: the king of knob jobs in alabama saw these, he consulted with the niggers and crackheads that surrounded his hud apartment and all were belly laughing at the fact that this obese, mentally retarded dork would stalk Roger acrosss the face of the cyberworld and spread vicious lies about him.

But in the end it was known that a strong odor eminated from the king of knob jobs in alabama and much strong lye soap was necessary to cleanse his filthy body and hud apartment of the stench. So, the order was given by the city of athens sanitation department to fumigate his filthy, roach infested hud hovel.

When the fumigation was complete, cockroaches were scurrying into the streets and lawns of athens like never before. Now, when a light was turned on, those who had seen Lloydie's hovel before were amazed at the mounds of dead roaches, rats. The stench of shitty underwear was overpowering, so much so the sanitation workers had to wear gas masks.

When the sanitation workers got to stepping to escape the roaches and rats, the king of knob jobs in alabama lay in wait in ambush for the sanitation workers in their path to return to their vehicles. Then the king of knob jobs in alabama leaped forward and stood in their path. The king of knob jobs in alabama had been licking his thick blubbery lips in anticipation of sucking these black sanitation workers off to satisify his perverse sexual desires. They laughed at the obese retarded one, who they always laughed at behind his back. They brushed him aside as he fell to his knees and begged them to let him suck their big black nigger dicks. Lloydie knew that they knew that all escape routes were blocked and he was in deep shit. As the king listened to their guffaws and mocking him, he sharpened his pizza cutter, for the king of knob jobs in alabama is nothing more than a pizza delivery boy.

The king of knob jobs in alabama finished sharpening his pizza cutter and looked at the niggers and crackheads laughing their asses off and pointing at him in mockery.

Then Lloydie heard, DAMMIT, Lloyd, you have pizzas to deliver, are you napping and daydreaming on the job again, and there was much scurrying about to complete his given tasks.

Lloyd autistic Davies plagiarized:
> You can't come in

Like when he shrieked "Leave me alone" when Oris stopped by!

I happened to be traveling through Huntsville, Alabama early this morning, I deceided to stop in Athens and see just how tough Lloyd Davies was going to act when he saw me in person.

Many of you know that a few years ago, Lloyd got smart with several people in the Deja Newsgroup (now Google) and I issued a challenge to him. I told him I would be attending the Dalton, Ga. Hamfest if he wanted to continue the conversation. He said he would be there and he was going to kick my ass.

Well, Lloyd was a no-show and continued the verbal assault on the newsgroups. He always talks tough behind his keyboard. And, I understand he is now doing the same sort of thing on the NIM Busters Board.

Well, about 8.35 this morning (December 23, 2004) I located his apartment in a nasty looking section of town. I'm a pretty good sized man, but I put my gun in my back waistband after exiting the car. I located his apartment and knocked on the door. The doorbell was missing and bare wires were sticking out of the wall. I heard someone say I'm coming and shortly the door opened with a safety chain lock still engaged. He asked what I wanted and I introduced myself and asked if we could have a conversation. He turned white as a sheet and attempted to slam the door, but I already had a foot wedged in the opening. He started shaking uncontrollably and was shouting leave me alone, leave me alone! I told him he didn't seem so tough now face to face and then noticed a putrid odor of urine and he was pissing his pants and crying like a baby. Please leave me alone Oris he said, I was just having fun and meant no harm, please leave, please. I could see the filthy floor of this apartment and the dirty floors and the stench of a grown man pissing on himself were almost enough to make me want to vomit, and I don't have a queasy stomach. Upon telling him that this time he would escape a ass kicking and not to ever get a smart mouth with me again and a verbal yes from him, I departed. That apartment complex looked like a crackhouse, niggers everywhere, filthy grounds and stairwells. Junk cars everywhere and garbage overflowing the garbage cans.

This Lloyd is nothing more than white trash that delivers pizzas and could afford to take a trip out of town if the ticket cost $5.00.

I'm sending this to a friend who despises Lloyd Davies and he wanted to post it for everyone to see just what kind of chickenshit asshole this Davies really is.

Oris Grimm

Day 58, huh?

Time sure does fly when you're being lied to. I'll bet that attorney didn't like being lied to, either.

You need glasses! Her face must have on a ton of makeup to hide the bags and wrinkles. That ex-Helsinki streetwalker sure did have lots of mileage.

The Great Pumpkin
Birmingham Post-Herald
October 14, 2000

Police arrested Lloyd A. Davies, a 27 year old white male, resident of Athens, Alabama in the Anderson Pumpkin patch at 11:38pm Friday. Davies will be charged with lewd and lascivious behavior, public indecency, and public intoxication at the Athens Municipal Courthouse Monday. The suspect allegedly stated that as he was passing a pumpkin patch, he decided to stop. "You know, a pumpkin is soft and squishy inside, and there was no one around here for miles. At least I thought there wasn't." he stated in a phone interview from the Athens Municipal Courthouse Jail.

Davies went on to state that he pulled over to the side of the road, picked out a pumpkin that he felt was appropriate to his purposes, cut a hole in it, and proceeded to satisfy his alleged "need". "I guess I was just really into it, you know?" he commented with evident embarrassment. In the process, Torrance apparently failed to notice the

Athens Municipal police car approaching and was unaware of his audience

until officer Brenda Taylor approached him. "It was an unusual situation, sure." said officer Taylor. "I walked up to (Davies) and he's... just working away at this pumpkin." Taylor went on to describe what happened when she approached Davies. "I just went up and said, 'Excuse me sir, but do you realize that you are screwing a pumpkin?' He got real surprised as you'd expect, and then looked me straight in the face and said,

'A pumpkin? Damn... is it midnight already?"

6245. Interested in _REAL_ Ham Radio? (As opposed to Complete Buffoonery (CB)?) Here's the FAQ for you!

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.policy

From: Plod's Conscience <radio.ham@lycos.co.uk>

When reading this, be on the guard against the Cry Baby (CB),
the Cackling Bully (CB) and the Complete Buffoon (CB)!

What is Ham Radio?

It is becoming increasingly difficult to fly the flag for decency and for civilised behaviour in Radio Hammery. Even
the Usenet newsgroups dedicated to the cause have degenerated
into a hotbed of abusive onslaughts by those who ought to know better.
However, there still exists the fundamental basis on which Ham Radio is based, and that will never die. This FAQ ("What Is Ham Radio?") will be regularly published and will not be shouted or bullied down. It is important that those of a technical bent, who are the natural seed-corn of Radio Hammery
and who gravitate towards us to be the real novitiate, can still find us, (and know that we are still here), their fellows.

-----ooooo-----

Please remember that this FAQ is a _POSITIVE EXHORTATION_
to you to exert yourselves to join our fraternity! (If you find otherwise, then perhaps you are already classing yourself in the mediocre groups of those who are criticised in the FAQ and from whom we _MUST_ dissociate? If so - it's never too late for a re-taxonomisation on your part - there's nothing elitist about
us, and we welcome all those who are prepared to put themselves
out in order to join our ranks!)

-----ooooo-----
So,.....What is Ham Radio?

Ham Radio is a technical pursuit for those who are interested in the science of radio wave
propagation and who are also interested in the way that their radios function. It has a long-standing tradition of providing a source of engineers who
are born naturals.

Ham Radio awakens in its aficionados a whole-life
fascination with all things technical and gives
an all-abiding curiosity to improve one's scientific knowledge. It's a great swimming pool, please dive in!

This excitement causes a wish to share the experience
with ones fellow man, and shows itself in the gentlemanly traditions of Ham Radio.

Radio Hams are in a unique privileged position in that they can construct and operate their own equipment! No-one else has this privilege. Users, such as broadcasters,
the po lice and armed farces, CBers and mobile phone users have to purchase ready-made gear. Manufacturers
are not licensed to operate their gear. Radio Hams
are qualified to design, build and then
operate their own pieces of equipment. They do this
with gusto, and also repair and modify their own
equipment. This is a privilege well worth the effort
to gain, and one to be jealously guarded.

The excitement that drives a Radio Ham starts with relatively simple technologies at first, perhaps making
his own Wimshurst machine and primary cells. Small pieces
of test equipment follow, possibly multimeters and signal
generators. Then comes receivers and transmitters. It is with the latter that communication with like-minded technically motivated people takes off. The scope for technical development grows with the years
and now encompasses DSP and DDS. There is also a great deal of excitement in the areas of computer programming to
be learnt and applied.

The technical excitement motivates Radio Hams to compete
with each other to determine who has designed and manufactured
the best-quality station. This competitiveness is found in DXing, competitions and fox-hunts.

-----OOOOO----

However, beware! A Ham Radio licence is such a desirable thing to have that there are large numbers of people who wish to be thought of
as Radio Hams when, in fact, they are nothing of the kind! Usually such people are a variation of the CB Radio hobbyist; they buy their radios off the shelf and send them back to be repaired; they are not interested in technical discussion
and sneer at those who are; they have no idea how
their radios work inside and have no wish to find out;
they are free with rather silly personal insults;
they have not satisfied any technical qualification
and their licences prevent the use of
self-designed-and-built equipment.

These CB types engage in the competitive activities
with their Cheque-Book-purchased off-the-shelf radios
in a forlorn effort to prove that they are Radio Hams.

No _REAL_ Radio Hams are deceived by such people!

-----ooooo-----

One such CB type is the so-called "Not-Ham". Otherwise known as the CBer-Masquerading-As-A-Radio-Ham, this type
had their background in the hobby that is CB Radio and not in the technical pursuits that lead up to a coveted Ham licence.
Easily recognised by their boasts of the criminal activity of 11 metre SSB operation, one wonders why they don't go back to the CB Bands if such bands are dearer in their hearts than are the Ham Bands? No _REAL Radio Hams associate with those who made an illegal installation of transmitting equipment before being
in possession of an appropriate licence.

-----ooooo-----

One infallible way to disambiguate the CB Radio Hobbyist
from the _REAL_ Radio Ham is to solicit their view of the difference between CB Radio and Ham Radio. A Radio Ham will perceive Ham Radio to be a technical pursuit and will perceive CB Radio to be a social communications facility
no different in essence to a land-line telephone or a GSM mobile in the hands of a 6-year-old. Thus a Radio Ham
could also hold a CB licence safe in the knowledge that such a licence says no more about him than having a land-line telephone, whilst continuing to regard Ham Radio as a separate technical pursuit.

A CB Radio hobbyist, on the other hand, sees no difference between a Ham Radio licence and a CB Radio licence. To him, they are sisters-under-the-skin. Wrongly, the CB Radio Hobbyist then
tries to classify himself as the equal of the Radio Ham when, in fact, he is nothing of the kind. A sure sign of a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds, or has ever held, a licence
issued under the gangrenous degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme.

-----ooooo-----

One group of people who claim to be of the standard of Radio Hams but who are in reality nothing more than an apology for the failure of a CBer are those class B
licensees who falsely proclaimed that they were against
the use of a Morse Test to control access to the HF
bands, until, that is, a test was introduced at their intellectual level, the intellectual level of 6-year-olds.

6 year-olds simply lack the mathematical tool kit to enable them to handle even the simplest algebraic manipulation
for Ohm's Law and thus, the disgraceful Class Ber's in
the aforementioned category are not Radio Hams by any stretch
of the imagination!

Remember - A sure sign of a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds,
or has ever held, a licence issued under the gangrenous
degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme!

They can construct it, but I don't know even one that does.

Same applies to many CB operators.

20 years ago, yes. Nowadays, all those people don't bother about placing an antenna, they just use MSN messenger. What's left on CB today are people that love radio.

> they are free with rather silly personal insults;

You should listen to some of our Dutch 2-meter repeaters. And you should listen to yourself when you talk about CB operators.

Your views are obscured by ignorance. I know many CB operators who are appealed more by technology than all those HAM's who, after passing their exam, never touched a soldering iron in their life anymore.

* Lots of insults cut out *

Fortunately, we have a different view on CB here in Holland. One channel on CB is even an official VRZA home frequency, where official HAMs and CB operators come together to talk about their hobby. The result: they attend our meetings and start to study for the 'real' HAM status.

Don't repell them, attract them.

That anyone is subjected to a malicious, misleading
and perjurous complaint to the plods is a reflection on the complainer and not on the victim.

Brian Reay subjected me to a scurrilous, distressing and grossly offensive campaign of harassment over a two-year period when he regularly accused me of sheep-shaggingand of drinking methylated spirit. He said that my wife was a sheep next to me in the bed. It is difficult to understand the relevance of such a campaign to the pursuit that is Ham Radio, but he found it within his psyche to so behave.

That he conducted that campaign when he was under training as a teacher in a girls' school in Dartford is very, very worrying now that the matter of Ian Huntley has been brought once again into our consciences.

That he is a sexual pervert who is obsessed with sheep shagging is in no doubt. That he is a danger to children because of that obsession is also in no doubt. That he should not be employed in _ANY_ capacity in any school because he repeatedly published his obsession in an international news group to which children have access is also in no doubt.

When "the worm turned" and I finally made a stand against his grossly offensive tirade, Brian Reay made his false complaint to the plods. That he attempted to hide the true nature of what had passed is a further reason why he is unsuitable to be employed in any capacity in any school.

Im glad the free democratic world can operate on amatuer radio without other peoples opinions being forced down their throat

yes we must have standards and yes its about time the standard QSO should be about people talking together not some copy of a miltery test

if one has to eat dictioneries
one would be better off getting a life wouldnt one

over articulation, well thats democratic freedom as well,

we could try and see the good in the new changes

who has formed an association with a scout troop.

I'm curious if any of you have witnessed impersonation by a ham radio operator. In other words, someone was transmitting and claiming to be someone else, using an alternate name and/or callsign.

This curiosity came up because I had a brief ssb reception in the 80-meter band a few nights ago before going to bed. The people chatting were arguing about being lied to by the others, and the conversation included some not-very-convincing threats of lawsuits. Something along the lines of "I would testify in court that you called me on the phone and lied to me!"

I'm not a ham myself, just a shortwave listener. Regards, w.

OTK is a has-been. In fact, even when he was running a million watts (literal exaggeration for you CB types) he was a has-been.
Obnoxious? Yes, that is OTK. Overbearing? Yes, that is OTK. Arrogant and running illegal power? Yes, that is OTK.

Is OTK missed? No.

6349. The Weekly FAQ (Reposted after thread was hijacked by the very Childish Broadcasters (CBers) warned against.)

This is reposted because this week's thread was hijacked by the very Childish Broadcasters (CBers) warned against. Remember that Ham Radio is a technical pursuit for gentlemen, and not some mindless operating hobby for Cheque-Book (CB) wielding thickos!

Jealously guard and foment what we have achieved!

When reading this, be on the guard against the Cry Baby (CB),
the Cackling Bully (CB) and the Complete Buffoon (CB)!

What is Ham Radio?

It is becoming increasingly difficult to fly the flag for decency and for civilised behaviour in Radio Hammery. Even
the Usenet newsgroups dedicated to the cause have degenerated
into a hotbed of abusive onslaughts by those who ought to know better.
However, there still exists the fundamental basis on which Ham Radio is based, and that will never die. This FAQ ("What Is Ham Radio?") will be regularly published and will not be shouted or bullied down. It is important that those of a technical bent, who are the natural seed-corn of Radio Hammery
and who gravitate towards us to be the real novitiate, can still find us, (and know that we are still here), their fellows.

-----ooooo-----

Please remember that this FAQ is a _POSITIVE EXHORTATION_
to you to exert yourselves to join our fraternity! (If you find otherwise, then perhaps you are already classing yourself in the mediocre groups of those who are criticised in the FAQ and from whom we _MUST_ dissociate? If so - it's never too late for a re-taxonomisation on your part - there's nothing elitist about
us, and we welcome all those who are prepared to put themselves
out in order to join our ranks!)

-----ooooo-----
So,.....What is Ham Radio?

Ham Radio is a technical pursuit for those who are interested in the science of radio wave
propagation and who are also interested in the way that their radios function. It has a long-standing tradition of providing a source of engineers who
are born naturals.

Ham Radio awakens in its aficionados a whole-life
fascination with all things technical and gives
an all-abiding curiosity to improve one's scientific knowledge. It's a great swimming pool, please dive in!

This excitement causes a wish to share the experience
with ones fellow man, and shows itself in the gentlemanly traditions of Ham Radio.

Radio Hams are in a unique privileged position in that they can construct and operate their own equipment! No-one else has this privilege. Users, such as broadcasters,
the po lice and armed farces, CBers and mobile phone users have to purchase ready-made gear. Manufacturers
are not licensed to operate their gear. Radio Hams
are qualified to design, build and then
operate their own pieces of equipment. They do this
with gusto, and also repair and modify their own
equipment. This is a privilege well worth the effort
to gain, and one to be jealously guarded.

The excitement that drives a Radio Ham starts with relatively simple technologies at first, perhaps making
his own Wimshurst machine and primary cells. Small pieces
of test equipment follow, possibly multimeters and signal
generators. Then comes receivers and transmitters. It is with the latter that communication with like-minded technically motivated people takes off. The scope for technical development grows with the years
and now encompasses DSP and DDS. There is also a great deal of excitement in the areas of computer programming to
be learnt and applied.

The technical excitement motivates Radio Hams to compete
with each other to determine who has designed and manufactured
the best-quality station. This competitiveness is found in DXing, competitions and fox-hunts.

-----OOOOO----

However, beware! A Ham Radio licence is such a desirable thing to have that there are large numbers of people who wish to be thought of
as Radio Hams when, in fact, they are nothing of the kind! Usually such people are a variation of the CB Radio hobbyist; they buy their radios off the shelf and send them back to be repaired; they are not interested in technical discussion
and sneer at those who are; they have no idea how
their radios work inside and have no wish to find out;
they are free with rather silly personal insults;
they have not satisfied any technical qualification
and their licences prevent the use of

self-designed-and-built equipment.

These CB types engage in the competitive activities
with their Cheque-Book-purchased off-the-shelf radios
in a forlorn effort to prove that they are Radio Hams.

No _REAL_ Radio Hams are deceived by such people!

-----ooooo-----

One such CB type is the so-called "Not-Ham". Otherwise known as the CBer-Masquerading-As-A-Radio-Ham, this type
had their background in the hobby that is CB Radio and not in the technical pursuits that lead up to a coveted Ham licence.
Easily recognised by their boasts of the criminal activity of 11 metre SSB operation, one wonders why they don't go back to the CB Bands if such bands are dearer in their hearts than are the Ham Bands? No _REAL Radio Hams associate with those who made an illegal installation of transmitting equipment before being
in possession of an appropriate licence.

-----ooooo-----

One infallible way to disambiguate the CB Radio Hobbyist
from the _REAL_ Radio Ham is to solicit their view of the difference between CB Radio and Ham Radio. A Radio Ham will perceive Ham Radio to be a technical pursuit and will perceive CB Radio to be a social communications facility
no different in essence to a land-line telephone or a GSM mobile in the hands of a 6-year-old. Thus a Radio Ham could also hold a CB licence safe in the knowledge that such a licence says no more about him than having a land-line telephone, whilst continuing to regard Ham Radio as a separate technical pursuit.

A CB Radio hobbyist, on the other hand, sees no difference between a Ham Radio licence and a CB Radio licence. To him, they are sisters-under-the-skin. Wrongly, the CB Radio Hobbyist then
tries to classify himself as the equal of the Radio Ham when, in fact, he is nothing of the kind. A sure sign of a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds, or has ever held, a licence
issued under the gangrenous degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme.

-----ooooo-----

One group of people who claim to be of the standard of Radio Hams but who are in reality nothing more than an apology for the failure of a CBer are those class B
licensees who falsely proclaimed that they were against
the use of a Morse Test to control access to the HF
bands, until, that is, a test was introduced at their intellectual level, the intellectual level of 6-year-olds.

6 year-olds simply lack the mathematical tool kit to enable them to handle even the simplest algebraic manipulation
for Ohm's Law and thus, the disgraceful Class Ber's in
the aforementioned category are not Radio Hams by any stretch
of the imagination!

Remember - A sure sign of a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds,
or has ever held, a licence issued under the gangrenous
degeneration that is the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme!

Agreed. The sense of help and encouragement shown towards all newcomers to the hobby is very lacking. Is it any wonder a few give up and go 'off the rails'...

How are beginners expected to "put themselves out? when the only way to "hammery" is through the M3 direction?

To be proud of yes but jealously guarded? How are you going to guard it... by demanding Morse be set at 20-30 WPM in_all_classes of "Hammery"

A bit like CB really. You start off with a basic package, you get more interested and learn the technical skills to install your own station and some go on to build their own antenna arrays, repair their own radio's and that of friends then some decide to take it a step further into the Amateur radio side of things only to meet up with people like you in the forums who welcome with one hand then dismiss immediately with the other with long winded diatribe...

Just like CB, I remember the fox-hunts we had in the late 70's - early 80's and what fun they were too. I remember also the joys of DX on 11 metres, especially the competitions and the sense of achievement in contacting those far away stations. Seems the two hobbies are similar after all... (How dare I make that comparison eh...)

Then that is appalling as most CB'ers I know are now Amateurs and are quite respectable too. They have always shown a fascination in radio, in it's DX use and internal workings and antenna from their CB days to today...

> they are free with rather silly personal insults;

You mean like "Childish Broadcaster" "Cry Baby" "Cackling Bully" "Complete Buffoon" "Criminals" "M3/CB fools" calling men who question them "girls" and so on... yes, very silly...

You mean they haven't completed a multi-guess ticky box test? Well, unless someone's completed one of those then they obviously must know nothing at all...

Several people even in this group have admitted to installing and using 2 Metre equipment before they actively became Amateurs... and some of these 'illegal's are even teachers of the hobby now...

No disagreement there... CB radio was devised originally as a "service" for the community to keep in local touch with each other. Then anyone wishing to Advance would learn more and become a licensed Radio Amateur. Pretty straightforward stuff really.

Maybe not separate, but a more advanced hobby yes. With the advent of mobile phones and just about every UK home having a telephone of some description why would a Radio Amateur wish to use a CB as a land-line especially as the average CB set up has only a 5 mile radius? Your argument on this point holds no water.

No CB'er I have ever met or known has ever considered or classed himself as a Radio Ham. Maybe if you had said M3 Licence holder I could agree with you to a point...

A sure sign of > a CB Radio hobbyist is if he holds, or has ever held, a licence

Floored statement once again. Every prospective Amateur needs to sit the M3 test before he advances (or not) and may have even only held said licence for a couple of weeks to make sure he/she is comfortable with the hobby before moving on... It is the ONLY route into "Hammery" now...

Another completely floored argument. Please state how many 6 yr olds hold an M3 or any other radio licence. I bet you could count them on one hand. Just because a 6 yr old 'could' pass the test if he/she is intelligently bright enough doesn't mean any 6 yr old can pass it. At 6 yrs old you are still very very young and immature and as I have said previously, unless the parents who are Amateurs themselves push their siblings into the hobby they certainly wouldn't think of it themselves... And before anyone comes back saying how simple the test is, then yes, for you it would be but not to a 6 yr old.

All because they weren't interested in Morse code, that antiquated communication method pre-dating last century and rarely used now apart from by a few 'die hard' Amateurs. It was a different story back in the 40's and 50's. We don't even light beacons anymore to warn of invasion. Time to move into the real world Mr Evans...

No need to comment further here...

I would love to see the answers he would give to my questions but I won't hold my breath...

He would be too busy thinking up his next diatribe against the police and "not-hams" to concern himself with me...

foment
verb [T] FORMAL
to cause trouble to develop:
Example,
"The song was banned on the grounds that it might foment racial tension.""

Cause trouble, that would be about right for you beanie.

They can take the tests as that is the route they have to take. But they certainly don't have to lower themselves to actually applying for an M3 callsign! Maybe they could take one of the TWO all day sessions that Brian mentioned and go straight to a Full licence. It's just a shame this facility isn't offered ALL the time. Brian still hasn't given a good answer as to why that facility isn't available ALL the time!

> To be proud of yes but jealously guarded? How are you going to guard it... > by demanding Morse be set at 20-30 WPM in_all_classes of "Hammery"

That would be a good start. At least we'd get rid of a lot of the chaff that has no intention of progressing up the so-called progressive licensing scheme (a.k.a. an M3 licensee of more than one year). If there had been a 20-30wpm Morse test when they got their M3 farce licence, then they would never have bothered and Amateur Radio would have been a better place as a result.

Just curious.... was that 11M DXing on SSB? Can't really see what excitement there would be trying to DX with 4W of FM!

> No disagreement there... CB radio was devised originally as a "service" for > the community to keep in local touch with each other.

So, why were you DXing on it if it is only to be used as a local service?

> Please state how many 6 yr olds hold an > M3 or any other radio licence.

We have been asking Brian and the RSGB to release these non-personal stats for ages but for some reason they always avoid the question.
Brian says he would be uncomfortable doing so himself, so why doesn't he with his Board position of "Amateur Radio Development" within RSGB Ltd get them published in RadCom. There really is no good reason why these stats cannot be published unless they are trying to hide something.

Another interesting stat would be the percentage of M3s that have progressed any further!!

> All because they weren't interested in Morse code, that antiquated

You obviously don't listen to the HF bands much then! Morse code is alive and well and is being used by a LOT of people. Take just about any recent DXpedition in the past few years and look at the breakdown of the QSOs regarding CW v SSB. Usually the CW totals are far ahead of the SSB totals. "Rarely used".... you have no idea what you are talking about! Or maybe you just hear all those funny noises at the low ends of the bands and as you don't understand Morse code you are prejudiced against it. Just a wild guess :)

Tune your radio over to 14.313 or 14.275 any time during daylight hours and you will hear a dozen or so bootleggers using other people's callsigns on an almost daily basis. Seems to peak on the weekends however when the factory-trash ain't hard at work tightening those lug nuts on those shiny, overpriced, plastic-filled and poorly engineered Ford and GMC products. The have to have some kind of a "release" you know. It ain't easy being a moron on the shop assy line at the --------- Plant in ------ Michigan you know (...as to the location of the potty-mouth QRM'er on 14.275 for all you OO's out there, try a radius of 20 miles around Oakland County MI ...hint hint...)

not prove it was wrong, but I'd know it was wrong."

Floating in the bowl

Awakens my soul

Never do I flush
A present for the next patron
Knowing what awaits, gives me quite a rush
For I am a fair matron

Behold he shall ride upon a hard dick and his name shall be Lloyd Austin Davies.

And it came to pass that the king of knob jobs in Alabama, (as Lloyd is known) was gone for a long time, and some of the people celebrated and some speculated that he had died, some speculated that he was ill, some speculated that he was in Maryland at Ray Chason's apartment, and some even thought that the king of knob jobs in Alabama had been made a sex slave by Ray Chason and his butt buddies. It was then the people started to rejoice.

And when the niggers and crackheads heard the murmuring and rumours of the people they assured them that the king of knob jobs in Alabama was just busy sucking on one of his nigger neighbors' big black dicks and would address the people as soon as he could swallow that big load of nigger jizz. The neighbors in his hud apartment complex also knew that the project was the sucking of nigger dicks and telling lies and more lies, but they did not tell the people this for they did not desire to have a vice squad nightmare in the city of Deliverance Extras. Alabama liked to hear about the fat retarded one who proclaimed he was the king of knob jobs in Alabama.

And the niggers and crackheads reassured the people that everything was all right, and told them to prepare pyres and to cook meat, and to ice down beer and nehi soda, and to go out and buy potato chips and other unhealthy snacks from the traders who had immigrated to the kingdom from Vietnam and the land of Gaza. And so the went down to these little stores owned and bought these things. And they went home and warmed up their TV's, for the sabbath approached and the sabbath would bring more action from the mediocre football team at U of Alabama, and the sabbath would bring plenty of exciting nob gobbling action and goo gobbling from the king of knob jobs in Alabama.

The king of knob jobs in Alabama in reality is a ghastly pale porker who stands only 5'6" and weighs an unhealthy 290 Lbs. His skin is as white as copying paper due to his night job of delivering pizzas to the ghetto neighborhood where he dwells in a filthy, roach infested HUD hovel. He doesn't venture outside during the daylight hours, instead preferring to play with Star Trek and Dalek dolls, post lies and filth on the internet and jack off to thoughts of his unrequited love interest Roger Wiseman and dream of finally actually getting some pussy. Not stick pussy, which his homosexual lover Steve Holsten feeds him several times a year when Lloyd goes for his visits, usually around Thanksgiving.

Lately, the king of knob jobs in Alabama has been consumed with posting pictures of someone he says is Roger Wiseman. In fact, the obviously botched purple rendering of somebody else has been cut and pasted, photoshopped and distributed all over the internet by the king of knob jobs in Alabama and his homosexual fantasy lover Ray Chason who is the king of knob jobs in Maryland. Chason who is also a porker has set up a blog of Roger's ex-wife "Regina" telling even more lies. Roger wasn't ever married to anyone named Regina. Of course Chason and Lloyd refuse to let truth get in the way of their lies, like their butt buddy friends who post lies, lies and more lies about anybody who reveals the truth about this band of homosexual predators.

This was e-mailed to me this morning by Oris Grim an old friend.

I happened to be traveling through Huntsville, Alabama early this morning, I deceided to stop in Athens and see just how tough Lloyd Davies was going to act when he saw me in person.

Many of you know that a few years ago, Lloyd got smart with several people in the Deja Newsgroup (now Google) and I issued a challenge to him. I told him I would be attending the Dalton, Ga. Hamfest if he wanted to continue the conversation. He said he would be there and he was going to kick my ass.

Well, Lloyd was a no-show and continued the verbal assault on the newsgroups. He always talks tough behind his keyboard. And, I understand he is now doing the same sort of thing on the NIM Busters Board.

Well, about 8.35 this morning (December 23, 2004) I located his apartment in a nasty looking section of town. I'm a pretty good sized man, but I put my gun in my back waistband after exiting the car. I located his apartment and knocked on the door. The doorbell was missing and bare wires were sticking out of the wall. I heard someone say I'm coming and shortly the door opened with a safety chain lock still engaged. He asked what I wanted and I introduced myself and asked if we could have a conversation. He turned white as a sheet and attempted to slam the door, but I already had a foot wedged in the opening. He started shaking uncontrollably and was shouting leave me alone, leave me alone! I told him he didn't seem so tough now face to face and then noticed a putrid odor of urine and he was pissing his pants and crying like a baby. Please leave me alone Oris he said, I was just having fun and meant no harm, please leave, please. I could see the filthy floor of this apartment and the dirty floors and the stench of a grown man pissing on himself were almost enough to make me want to vomit, and I don't have a queasy stomach. Upon telling him that this time he would escape a ass kicking and not to ever get a smart mouth with me again and a verbal yes from him, I departed. That apartment complex looked like a crackhouse, niggers everywhere, filthy grounds and stairwells.

Junk cars everywhere and garbage overflowing the garbage cans.

This Lloyd is nothing more than white trash that delivers pizzas and could afford to take a trip out of town if the ticket cost $5.00.

I'm sending this to a friend who despises Lloyd Davies and he wanted to post it for everyone to see just what kind of chickenshit asshole this Davies really is.

Lloyd still plays pretend he is a "time lord" and has Dr. Who, Star Wars and Star Trek dolls he plays with instead of a woman.

Err, FT817 at Martin Lynch.... £448.99. Covers all the bands you mention and not even close to £1000, in fact, not even half that amount.

FT817 gives you access to 17.44MHz of Amateur allocations in any mode for £448.99. A typical 80 channel CB gives you access to about 0.8Mhz in FM only.

Price per MHz for the FT817 = £25.74
Price per MHz for the CB = £62.50

No wonder all these CBers are clamouring to get an M3 licence. As they say, it's multi-band and multi-mode CB on the cheap!

Bless my boyfriend's gorgeous face
Bless his hair that tends to curl
Keep him safe from all the girls
Bless his arms that are so strong
Keep his hands where they belong

Me ever getting a piece of ass is a lie, there is only passion for Roger.
Through Bud light, I gain strength because I am a fatassed pussy.
Through Papa John's, I gain a free meal from leftover pizzas, which I put nutsack goo on them.
Through HUD, I gain a filthy apartment in the ghetto.
Through fellatio, my ass is saved from getting kicked in my Athens neighborhood.
The Force of a nigger dick against my tonsils shall free me.

The FCC had written Roger Wiseman on March 29, 2000, advising him that it had been made aware of him interfering and jamming on 20 meters.

Special Counsel for Amateur Radio Enforcement, Riley Hollingsworth
FCC 1270 Fairfield
Road Gettysburg, PA 17325

Dear Mr. Wiseman,

I find it hard to believe your assertion that this incident of jamming on 20 meters is an isolated occurrence. I have too many complaints on my desk about you for this to be a ï¿½one time affair.ï¿½ I have a strong feeling that this time is not the only time youï¿½ve let your emotions get the better of you and acted out in a juvenile manner. My personal opinion is that you have a lot of growing up to do. Generally when this kind of violation occurs I fine a licensee, however since youï¿½ve already stated that you are indigent and can not afford a fine, I will, pursuant to ï¿½97.519(d)(2), readminister your licensure exam. Rest assured if your misbehavior continues next time your license will be suspended.

I've got news. He's still jamming on 20M. Any time Dumbass Donnie and/or the ham from Minnesota (..the guy who used to brag about his being able to go out into his front yard buck-naked anytime he wants to take a piss into the bushes since his nearest neighbor is 5 miles away) is in there, just listen for the squeaky QRM'er with the "mobile piss-weak signal" straining to be heard, and 50/50 it's Wogie Wabbit.
Also check out 3.947.5 on Sat nights when ole "Sid-the-Lid" BLB and his motley crew is in there for more QRM allegedly comming out of W.Va. He can't help it you see. it's become "a disease" as the late Mike KA4MUJ used to say. Funniest time however was when he tried to suck-up to "Vomit Mike" in Benton Harbor on 20M one day. Ole Mike saw thru him in 5 seconds an told em to hit the road. I laughed my freakin ass off.

Like you say, it isn't available all the time. Also some people have to study to advance as they are new to the hobby and can't do it all in a day.
Applying for the callsign gives them the opportunity to self learn on the bands as well as studying for it. I totally agree though that there should be a time limit on M3 licence holders before they are asked to advance or leave the hobby as their indifference isn't in Amateur radio's best interest.

Judging by many peoples comments in the newsgroups and a few Amateurs I have spoken to face to face many feel the hobby would have all but died compared to what it used to be if the insistence of Morse was upheld especially to that degree.

Yes, it would be DX'ing on 27.555MHz USB and probably more like 15w than 4. Yes it was illegal but the achievement felt by making that contact when others didn't think it could be done gave many a great sense of an achievement rather than something that could be achieved so easily on Amateur radio. If it is easy what's the point? Also I lived in Wales for a time and it was not unknown to have contacts throughout Europe on 4w FM because I managed it a few times myself. That was on UK27/81 legally too.

Because some found it was possible to do and was quite interesting. When CB was first introduced it was thought DX was impossible and many people who had fought for AM believed FM would only get them "down the road". I used it for both. Mainly to keep in touch with local friends (These were the days before cell phones were commonplace) and talking to the locals and other mobile stations when driving. CB is still un-beatable for that quick 10-13 (Traffic report) on the road ahead. DX was just an un-expected bonus.

That would be useful information and figures would not and should not make anyone uncomfortable in divulging. No-one was asking for specifics so for one I cannot see Brian's reluctance in this matter. He could just say there are 15 M3 licensed 6 yr old Amateurs. Now that in itself could not possibly make someone feel uncomfortable. If he was asked to prove it by giving out their call signs then that's a different story... but no-one is.

You seem to miss my point on this subject every time we are in discussion about it so I will say it again... I hold no ill judgement to anyone who wishes to use Morse. I have no problem with Morse and I believe it is down to the individual Amateur and should not forced on them to obtain 'superior' status. Nor do I think it fair to mock "lazy-assed B's" simply because they aren't really interested in Morse but are interested in everything else. Morse isn't the be all and end all of Amateur radio. So there may be more using it than I think..Compared to the amount of licensed Amateurs though I bet it's pretty low in comparison. Let's ask Brian again if he can give us any statistics on this?

Not really, the point was already answered several times so there was no real need to comment further. Just like now really but I thought I might. Besides which it's an open forum and disagreements can be aired quite openly.

Oh, our little Lloydie Davies is obsessed with Rich. Especially when he can't pass the theory or the code to get on hf and be a part of the

he is an eternal no-code tech.

Nice try, fatass. The last time any "enforcement actions" were done is 6 years ago. That retest (which you couldn't ever/ have yet to pass the

You moron, That isn't a letter from Riley. It's a letter from a mentally ill retard who has a career as a pizza delivery boy because that's the only job he is qualified to do! Porky Davies whines about a retest, but he still can't pass the smae test the first time.

Here's the real retest letter.

July 11, 2000

CERTIFIED MAIL--RETURN RECEIPT REQUESTED

Mr. Roger L. Wiseman

610 Glen Haven Avenue

Glendale, WV 26038-1302

SUBJECT: Amateur Radio license KC8JBO

Dear Mr. Wiseman:

Pursuant to Section 97.519(d)(2) of the Commission's Rules, 47 C.F.R.
Section 97.519(d)(2), the Commission has the authority to re-administer any (VE's).

The Commission may either administer the examination itself, or under the supervision of a Volunteer Examiner Coordinator (VEC) or VE designated by the Commission.

Accordingly, we are requiring you to re-take the General Class Amateur Examination, (Elements 2, 3(A) and 3(B)) under the supervision of an American Radio Relay League Volunteer Examiner Coordinator. This examination must be completed on or before September 11, 2000. The required code speed

that you must demonstrate is 5 words per minute.

Please be prepared to verify your current address and to present a photo

cancelled
if you do not appear for re-examination. You will be granted an Amateur

Dear Mr. Wiseman,

I find it hard to believe your assertion that this incident of jamming on 20 meters is an isolated occurrence. I have too many complaints on my desk about you for this to be a ï¿½one time affair.ï¿½ I have a strong feeling that this time is not the only time youï¿½ve let your emotions get the better of you and acted out in a juvenile manner. My personal opinion is that you have a lot of growing up to do. Generally when this kind of violation occurs I fine a licensee, however since youï¿½ve already stated that you are indigent and can not afford a fine, I will, pursuant to ï¿½97.519(d)(2), readminister your licensure exam. Rest assured if your misbehavior continues next time your license will be suspended.

I am selling my products (or trading for other child pornography). I have a complete color catalog of all products now available. You can purchase pictures (both normal kodak and computer JPEG's). Also, you can purchase posters, VHS tapes, used boys underwear, and audio recordings.

There are many products and services. Here are some prices:
Complete Color Catalog (160 pages).....$5.00
100 Pictures Little boys age 7-12.....$9.95
120 Pictures Little boys age 13-17.....$11.95

VHS tape, little boys "Happy B-day, Uncle Lloyd".....$49.95
VHS tape, teenage boys "Naked Pizza Party!".....$49.95
Personalized Audio tape.....$2.99

If you have child pornography, preferably little boys ages 7-9, I will trade or buy them from you. If they are action shots, of an adult with a little boy having sex, I am willing to trade big, or pay you a lot. Please write to me for more details. Thanks.

You can send cash, checks, or money orders made out to FUN WITH CHILDREN.
Please send your order to:

Please leave this topic out of the radio.amateur.homebrew NG
If you are desperate and can't live without it ,by all means continue your 'rants and insults' on the 2 addressed news groups , because these messages have NO relevance to amateur radio home construction .

Above all it is a shame that they appear on a newsgroup predominently frequented by non-UK amateurs ,who must get a rather bad impression of the 'UK Radio Amateur' .

The ranting is 'performed' by some UK radio amateurs ,who should know better.
The best that can happen is : No longer responding to Gareth's diatribe,such that we all can live in peace.

Peace

But that is simply not true and the statistics on the IARU website prove it. The total number of Amateurs in the UK was increasing year in, year out, and that was before either the Novice (now Intermediate) or Foundation licenses were introduced.

However, the number of RSGB members was reducing year in, year out, over the same period so the only reason RSGB Ltd backed these unnecessary licence schemes so vigorously was to try to get more members. They did not have the interests of Amateur Radio at heart, all they were concerned with was keeping their commercial book publishing company alive!

same could be said of the ARRL but in both cases the organzation were neither leading nor following nor getting out of the way, that is likely the reason for the drift in the ARS over the last few years but it is fact the insitance of Ham that Morse was somehow vital has made us look like buffoons to rest of the folks out there that perception is dangerous not so much from a numbers standpoint but from the stand as being seen as worthy of the bw we hold

In the UK, licences are renewed annually so those statistics on the IARU website are of licences that had been renewed in the previous 12 months. That makes the statistics very valid in proving the point I was making! Numbers were increasing year in, year out.

Now, had the licences only been renewed every 10 years like in the States (soon the be every five years in the UK) then you may have had a valid point.

You can thank the likes of AB8MQ for having turned this newsgroup into a virtual sewer. Wiseman has done so in other groups, too. While he is not the only miscreant, he is THE major malcontent and is largely at fault. Over the last 30 days he has posted no less than 371 times as "whinyslit", and this does not include his other screen names posted over the names and callsigns of others. Best guess? AB8MQ has most likely made 600 plus posts to rrap in this thirty day period.
Do the math. It is obvious that AB8MQ has more time on his hands than he has intellect.

For more on this clown, do a Google search on AB8MQ and KC8JBO. That will just about explain everything you didn't want to know.

6526. R.R.A.P. destined long ago 2 B a shi+hole

Many of you are wondering why R.R.A.P is such a disaster, filled with all manner of loons, malcontents, perverts, weirdoes and un-employable loosers.

The answer is VERY SIMPLE.

Think back to a few years ago when R. Hollingsworth stated that he was going to clean up 20 and 75 Meters of all the troublemakers and un-identified buffoons who were clogging up 14.313, 3.894.5, 3.910, 3.865, 14.275
and elsewhere and send them all to Usenet where they could go and "play" all day long in Cyberspace. . . . (remember??)

Guess what folks? K4ZDH did just that! Now all the
the FCC designated de-facto "holding cell" for all the OTK's, the EVE's, the PZT's and JYZ's and all the rest of em.

Now you know, the rest of the story!

Enjoy.

Your best bet to talk about REAL amateur radio discussion is to go either to eham or QRZ. I've found a better discussion on amateur radio policy on QRZ then on here. If you try to post some kind of amateur radio policy discussion on here, it will get hijacked by NON-Amateurs, with their name calling.

Dear Mr. Wiseman,

I find it hard to believe your assertion that this incident of jamming on 20 meters is an isolated occurrence. I have too many complaints on my desk about you for this to be a ï¿½one time affair.ï¿½ I have a strong feeling that this time is not the only time youï¿½ve let your emotions get the better of you and acted out in a juvenile manner. My personal opinion is that you have a lot of growing up to do. Generally when this kind of violation occurs I fine a licensee, however since youï¿½ve already stated that you are indigent and can not afford a fine, I will, pursuant to ï¿½97.519(d)(2), readminister your licensure exam. Rest assured if your misbehavior continues next time your license will be suspended.

The boyfriend ties me to the bed
Then he strips me nude Squeezes my pee pee tills it turns red
After that he gets a little lewd
Covers it with peanut butter
Him and the dog lick it clean
Then he does Sparky, and he starts to mutter
It is the funniest sight I'd ever seen
As boys go, he's the best, there's no other
I wish he was mine but he's not, he's my brothers

Lloyd Autistic Davies wrote:
>< Lloyd has a gay.com site, too!>

Behold he shall ride upon a hard dick and his name shall be Lloyd Austin Davies.

And it came to pass that the king of knob jobs in Alabama, (as Lloyd is known) was gone for a long time, and some of the people celebrated and some speculated that he had died, some speculated that he was ill, some speculated that he was in Maryland at Ray Chason's apartment, and some even thought that the king of knob jobs in Alabama had been made a sex slave by Ray Chason and his butt buddies. It was then the people started to rejoice.

And when the niggers and crackheads heard the murmuring and rumours of the people they assured them that the king of knob jobs in Alabama was just busy sucking on one of his nigger neighbors' big black dicks and would address the people as soon as he could swallow that big load of nigger jizz. The neighbors in his hud apartment complex also knew that the project was the sucking of nigger dicks and telling lies and more lies, but they did not tell the people this for they did not desire to have a vice squad nightmare in the city of Deliverance Extras. Alabama liked to hear about the fat retarded one who proclaimed he was the king of knob jobs in Alabama.

And the niggers and crackheads reassured the people that everything was all right, and told them to prepare pyres and to cook meat, and to ice down beer and nehi soda, and to go out and buy potato chips and other unhealthy snacks from the traders who had immigrated to the kingdom from Vietnam and the land of Gaza. And so the went down to these little stores owned and bought these things. And they went home and warmed up their TV's, for the sabbath approached and the sabbath would bring more action from the mediocre football team at U of Alabama, and the sabbath would bring plenty of exciting nob gobbling action and goo gobbling from the king of knob jobs in Alabama.

The king of knob jobs in Alabama in reality is a ghastly pale porker who stands only 5'6" and weighs an unhealthy 290 Lbs. His skin is as white as copying paper due to his night job of delivering pizzas to the ghetto neighborhood where he dwells in a filthy, roach infested HUD hovel. He doesn't venture outside during the daylight hours, instead preferring to play with Star Trek and Dalek dolls, post lies and filth on the internet and jack off to thoughts of his unrequited love interest Roger Wiseman and dream of finally actually getting some pussy. Not stick pussy, which his homosexual lover Steve Holsten feeds him several times a year when Lloyd goes for his visits, usually around Thanksgiving.

Lately, the king of knob jobs in Alabama has been consumed with posting pictures of someone he says is Roger Wiseman. In fact, the obviously botched purple rendering of somebody else has been cut and pasted, photoshopped and distributed all over the internet by the king of knob jobs in Alabama and his homosexual fantasy lover Ray Chason who is the king of knob jobs in Maryland. Chason who is also a porker has set up a blog of Roger's ex-wife "Regina" telling even more lies. Roger wasn't ever married to anyone named Regina. Of course Chason and Lloyd refuse to let truth get in the way of their lies, like their butt buddy friends who post lies, lies and more lies about anybody who reveals the truth about this band of homosexual predators.

Well, a lot of the crap here started with a certain ham from West Virginia starting crap over the years with anyone who disagreed with him. Its been going on here even before Riley came aboard in 1999. Frankly, its been going on because people like Woger have been involved for years.

Perhaps a redirect is called for here:

Mork Moron, KB9RQZ is the one who likes to INTENTIONALLY alter callsigns. He spent an entire five weeks altering my callsign to "KY4Z" in these posts. He will, of course, refer to ONE time I accidentally typed his as "KB9EQZ"...However it was acknowledged as an error and not since duplicated, either intentionally or by error.

Also, for Morkie's benefit, the original posters said
"transmitting"...That means on the air...On a radio.

Idiot.

Be kind to Robeson. His behavior is his way of dealing with his own problems. He believes in projecting his troubles upon strangers, quite the quirky way of dealing and providing himself with some sort of mental therapy. He's a control freak and member of the Civil Air Patrol who acts like he does for reasons known only to himself. He is a man who dislikes compromise, his ego is easily bruised, and one only needs browse his warblings over the years for such an illustration of how this blemish of a Radio Amateur. Robeson is never wrong, don't you know that by now?

ï¿½ï¿½Jerry Oxendine told me Robeson was an officer in the CAP and Robeson has confirmed this himself. This by itself wouldn't be an issue, but the fact he feels it important enough to put it out there in public and couple it with such behavior unbecoming of one who holds such a position makes his hypocrisy fair game.
ï¿½ï¿½It's plain to see why this country is hated more each day around the world. With leaders like we have and officers like Oxendine and Robeson in charge of anyone or anything, who are out there setting examples like they do and spoiling the good image of such civil/military endeavors and entities, it's no wonder this great country is having its image tarnished. Robeson is the worst type of American. He wraps himself in the flag and attacks those with whom he disagrees as opposed to attacking the actual subject matter/topic. Another "semi-qualified licensed" hammie who has much to learn regarding communications. He was taught Fields Communications and basic introductories regarding such, but as exampled, is illiterate when it comes to Discipline in Communications, knows nothing of Approaches of Communications, Relations, Negotiations and a host of other academia related to his chosen radio hobby that he never bothered to learn.
He and Oxendine are much alike. Zero tolerance for any views but their own myopic concerns.

ARRL screwed people in the 60s with incentive licensing.
They thought people would forget in time. They did not.

ARRL screwed hams in Hawaii by refusing to ship QSL via bulk air mail, like all other publishers do.

ARRL pushed for quantity over quality for the selfish purpose of wanting to sell more magazines.

ad nauseam.................

FCC & ARRL partners in the culture of corruption.

Be kind to Robeson. His behavior is his way of dealing with his own problems. He believes in projecting his troubles upon strangers, quite the quirky way of dealing and providing himself with some sort of mental therapy. He's a control freak and member of the Civil Air Patrol who acts like he does for reasons known only to himself. He is a man who dislikes compromise, his ego is easily bruised, and one only needs browse his warblings over the years for such an illustration of how this blemish of a Radio Amateur. Robeson is never wrong, don't you know that by now?

ï¿½ï¿½Jerry Oxendine told me Robeson was an officer in the CAP and Robeson has confirmed this himself. This by itself wouldn't be an issue, but the fact he feels it important enough to put it out there in public
and couple it with such behavior unbecoming of one who holds such a position makes his hypocrisy fair game.
ï¿½ï¿½It's plain to see why this country is hated more each day around the world. With leaders like we have and officers like Oxendine and Robeson in charge of anyone or anything, who are out there setting examples like they do and spoiling the good image of such civil/military endeavors and entities, it's no wonder this great country is having its image tarnished. Robeson is the worst type of American. He wraps himself in the flag and attacks those with whom he disagrees as opposed to attacking the actual subject matter/topic. Another "semi-qualified licensed" hammie who has much to learn regarding communications. He was taught Fields Communications and basic introductories regarding such, but as exampled, is illiterate when it comes to Discipline in Communications, knows nothing of Approaches of Communications, Relations, Negotiations and a host of other academia related to his chosen radio hobby that he never bothered to learn.
He and Oxendine are much alike. Zero tolerance for any views but their own myopic concerns.

>From Discussion group: Amateur Radio Experimentation

Electromagnetic radiation is a propagating wave in space with electric and magnetic components. These components oscillate at right angles to each other and to the direction of propagation. The term electromagnetic radiation is also used as a synonym for electromagnetic waves in general, even if they are not radiating or travelling in free space. This sense includes, for example, light travelling through an optical fiber, or electrical energy travelling within a coaxial cable. Electromagnetic (EM) radiation carries energy and momentum which may be imparted when it interacts with matter.

PhysicsTheory
Electromagnetic waves of much lower frequency than visible light were predicted by Maxwell's equations and subsequently discovered by Heinrich Hertz. Maxwell derived a wave form of the electric and magnetic equations which made explicit the wave nature of the electric and magnetic fields. These equations displayed the symmetry of the fields. According to the theory, a time-varying electric field generates a magnetic field and vice versa. Thus, an oscillating electric field creates an oscillating magnetic field, which in turn creates an oscillating electric field, and so on. By this means an EM wave is produced which propagates through space.
Properties Electric and magnetic fields exhibit the property of superposition. This means that the field due to a particular particle or time-varying electric or magnetic field adds to the fields due to other causes. (As magnetic and electric fields are vector fields, this is the vector addition of all the individual electric and magnetic field vectors.) As a result, EM radiation is influenced by various phenomena such as refraction and diffraction. For example, a travelling

EM wave incident on a particular arrangement of atoms induces oscillation in the atoms and thus causes them to emit their own EM waves. These emissions interfere with the impinging wave and alter its form. In refraction, a wave moving from one medium to another of a different density changes its speed and direction when it enters the new medium. The ratio of the refractive indices of the media determines the extent of refraction. Refraction is the mechanism by which light disperses into a spectrum when it is shone through a prism. The physics of electromagnetic radiation is electrodynamics, a subfield of electromagnetism. EM radiation exhibits both wave properties and particle properties at the same time (see wave-particle duality). These characteristics are mutually exclusive and appear separately in different circumstances: the wave characteristics appear when EM radiation is measured over relatively large timescales and over large distances, and the particle characteristics are evident when measuring small distances and timescales. These characteristics have been confirmed by a large number of experiments.

Wave model An important aspect of the wave nature of light is frequency. The frequency of a wave is its rate of oscillation and is measured in hertz, the SI unit of frequency, equal to one oscillation per second. Light usually comprises a spectrum of frequencies which sum to form the resultant wave. In addition, frequency affects properties like refraction, in which different frequencies undergo a different level of refraction. A wave has troughs and crests. The wavelength is the distance from crest to crest. Waves in the electromagnetic spectrum vary in size from very long radio waves the size of buildings, to very short gamma-rays smaller than the size of the nucleus of an atom. Frequency has an inverse relationship to the concept of wavelength. When waves travel from one medium to another, their frequency remains exactly the same - only their speed changes. Waves can also be described by their radiant energy. Interference is the superposition of two or more waves resulting in a new wave pattern. The way that these coincide causes different types of interference.
Particle model In the particle model of EM radiation, EM radiation is quantized as particles called photons. Quantisation of light represents the discrete packets of energy which constitute the radiation. The frequency of the radiation determines the magnitude of the energy of the particles. Moreover, these particles are emitted and absorbed by charged particles, so photons act as transporters of energy. A photon absorbed by an atom excites an electron and elevates it to a higher energy level. If the energy is great enough, the electron is liberated from the atom in a process called ionization. Conversely, an electron which descends to a lower energy level in an atom emits a photon of light equal to the energy difference. The energy levels of electrons in atoms are discrete. Therefore, each element has its own characteristic frequencies. Together these effects explain the absorption spectra of light. The dark bands in the spectrum are due to the atoms in the intervening medium which absorb different frequencies of the light. The composition of the medium through which the light travels determines the nature of the absorption spectrum. For instance, in a distant star, dark bands in the light it emits are due to the atoms in the atmosphere of the star. These bands correspond to the allowed energy levels in the atoms. A similar phenomenon occurs for emission. As the electrons descend to lower energy levels, a spectrum which represents the jumps between the energy levels of the electrons is exhibited. This is manifested in the emission spectrum of nebulae.

Speed of propagation Any electric charge which accelerates, or any changing magnetic field, produces electromagnetic radiation. Electromagnetic information about the charge travels at the speed of light. Accurate treatment thus incorporates a concept known as retarded time (as opposed to advanced time, which is unphysical in light of causality), which adds to the expressions for the electrodynamic electric field and magnetic field. These extra terms are responsible for electromagnetic radiation. When any wire (or other conducting object such as an antenna) conducts alternating current, electromagnetic radiation is propagated at the same frequency as the electric current. Depending on the circumstances, it may behave as a wave or as particles. As a wave, it is characterized by a velocity (the speed of light), wavelength, and frequency. When considered as particles, they are known as photons, and each has an energy related to the frequency of the wave given by Planck's relation E = h?, where E is the energy of the photon, h = 6.626 × 10-34 J·s is Planck's constant, and ? is the frequency of the wave. One rule is always obeyed regardless of the circumstances. EM radiation in a vacuum always travels at the speed of light, relative to the observer, regardless of the observer's velocity. (This observation led to Albert Einstein's development of the theory of special relativity.) In a medium (other than vacuum), velocity of propagation or refractive index are considered, depending on frequency and application. Both of these are ratios of the speed in a medium to speed in a vacuum.

Generally, EM radiation is classified by wavelength into electrical energy, radio, microwave, infrared, the visible region we perceive as light, ultraviolet, X-rays and gamma rays. The behavior of EM radiation depends on its wavelength. Higher frequencies have shorter wavelengths, and lower frequencies have longer wavelengths. When EM radiation interacts with single atoms and molecules, its behavior depends on the amount of energy per quantum it carries. Spectroscopy can detect a much wider region of the EM spectrum than the visible range of 400 nm to 700 nm. A common laboratory spectroscope can detect wavelengths from 2 nm to 2500 nm. More in-depth information about the physical properties of objects, gases, or even stars can be obtained from this type of device.

It is widely used in astrophysics. For example, many hydrogen atoms emit radio waves which have a wavelength of 21.12 cm.
Light Main article: light EM radiation with a wavelength between approximately 400 nm and 700 nm is detected by the human eye and perceived as visible light. If radiation having a frequency in the visible region of the EM spectrum shines on an object, say, a bowl of fruit, this results in our visual perception of identifying information from the scene. Our brain's visual system processes the multitude of reflected frequencies into different shades and hues, and through this not-entirely-understood "psychophysical phenomenon," most humans perceive a bowl of fruit. In the vast majority of cases, however, the information carried by light is not directly apprehensible by human senses. Natural sources produce EM radiation across the spectrum; so, too, can human technology manipulate a broad range of wavelengths. Optical fiber transmits light which, although not suitable for direct viewing, can carry data. Those data can be translated into sound or an image. The coded form of such data is similar to that used with radio waves.

Radio waves Main article: radio wave Radio waves carry information by varying amplitude and by varying frequency within a frequency band. When EM radiation impinges upon a conductor, it couples to the conductor, travels along it, and induces an electric current on the surface of that conductor by exciting the electrons of the conducting material. This effect (the skin effect) is used in antennas. EM radiation may also cause certain molecules to absorb energy and thus to heat up; this is exploited in microwave ovens.

Derivation Electromagnetic waves as a general phenomenon were predicted by the classical laws of electricity and magnetism, known as Maxwell's equations. If you inspect Maxwell's equations without sources (charges or currents) then you will find that, along with the possibility of nothing happening, the theory will also admit nontrivial solutions of changing electric and magnetic fields. (For symbol definitions see magnetic field.) is a solution, but there might be other solutions as well. Let us employ a useful identity from vector calculus. Where can be any vector function. Taking the curl of the curl equations and applying the identity, we get the following. These types of equations are identified as linear wave equations with wave speed . Amazingly, this speed happens to be exactly the speed of light! Maxwell's equations have unified the permittivity of free space ?0, the permeability of free space ?0, and the speed of light itself: . Before this derivation it was not known that there was such a strong relationship between light and electricity and magnetism. But these are only two equations and we started with four, so there is still more information pertaining to these waves hidden within Maxwell's equations. Let's consider a generic vector wave for the electric field.

Here is the constant amplitude, f is any second differentiable function, is a unit vector in the direction of propagation, and is a position vector. We observe that is a generic solution to the wave equation. In other words, for a generic wave traveling in the direction. The proof of this is trivial. This form will satisfy the wave equation, but will it satisfy all of Maxwell's equations, and with what corresponding magnetic field? The first of Maxell's equations implies that electric field is orthogonal to the direction the wave propagates. The second of Maxwell's equations yields the magnetic field. The remaining equations will be satisfied by this choice of . Not only are the electric and magnetic field waves traveling at the speed of light, but they have a special restricted orientation and proportional magnitudes, . The electric field, magnetic field, and direction of wave propagation are all orthogonal and the wave propagates in the same direction as . Visualizing yourself as an electromagnetic wave traveling forward, the electric field might be oscillating up and down, while the magnetic field oscillates right and left; but you can rotate this picture around with the electric field oscillating right and left and the magnetic field oscillating down and up. This is a different solution that is traveling in the same direction. This arbitrariness in the orientation, with respect to propagation direction, is known as polarization.

But the copyright is on the work itself (the prose); not on the information! I would suggest that it is you who hasn't the foggiest understanding of copyright law.

I beg to differ, the courts have ruled a number of times that data, is not copyrightable. One case comes to mine had to do with a phone book a telephone company had put out and another company copied it from word to word and the phone company sued for copyright violation and the supreme court ruled that general data, no matter how you write it is not copyrightable.

Tables of numbers do not constitute prose. What you ripped off does.
Try to reproduce a college text and distribute it, and see how long it takes you to be hauled into court by its publisher.

As I stated before, The courts have ruled that no matter if one person wrote it or someone else did; the out come of the information would be the same, and data is not copyrightable. Copyrights are there to protect creativity, and for something to be protected under copyright law it has to be ORGINAL, and copyright law doesn't protect the idea, but they way the idea is expressed. fact and Information are not copyrightable, even it this information was copyrightable,which it isn't, it would fall into public domain because electromagnetic radiation (waves) has been around since the 1800's and anything before 1923 is not copyrightable, and is consider, public domain.

To quote from the ruling "... is copyrightable only if its facts have been 'selected, coordinated, or arranged in such a way that the resulting work as a whole constitutes an original work of authorship.'"

[From http://www.techlawjournal.com/cong106/database/19910327feist.htm]

That's why a physics text is copyrightable. It's also why an explanation of electromagnetic radiation is also copyrightable.

Sorry, Tood. You're interpretation is seriously flawed.

P.S. Electromagnetic radiation has been around since the beginning of the universe. It is only mankind's understanding of it which is relatively recent.

God said, "div D = rho, div B = 0, curl E = -@B/@t, curl H = J + @D/@t,"

The Opinion of the Court

O'CONNOR J., delivered the opinion of the Court, in which REHNQUIST, C.J., and WHITE, MARSHALL, STEVENS, SCALIA, KENNEDY, and SOUTER, JJ., joined. BLACKMUN, J., concurred in the judgment.

Kyler Knobbe, Cimarron, Kan., for petitioner. James M. Caplinger, Jr., Topeka, Kan., for respondent.

Justice O'CONNOR delivered the opinion of the Court.

This case requires us to clarify the extent of copyright protection available to telephone directory white pages.

I.

Rural Telephone Service Company, Inc., is a certified public utility that provides telephone service to several communities in northwest Kansas. It is subject to a state regulation that requires all telephone companies operating in Kansas to issue annually an updated telephone directory. Accordingly, as a condition of its monopoly franchise, Rural publishes a typical telephone directory, consisting of white pages and yellow pages. The white pages list in alphabetical order the names of Rural's subscribers, together with their towns and telephone numbers. The yellow pages list Rural's business subscribers alphabetically by category and feature classified advertisements of various sizes. Rural distributes its directory free of charge to its subscribers, but earns revenue by selling yellow pages advertisements.

Feist Publications, Inc., is a publishing company that specializes in area- wide telephone directories. Unlike a typical directory, which covers only a particular calling area, Feist's area-wide directories cover a much larger geographical range, reducing the need to call directory assistance or consult multiple directories. The Feist directory that is the subject of this litigation covers 11 different telephone service areas in 15 counties and contains 46,878 white pages listings--compared to Rural's approximately 7,700 listings. Like Rural's directory, Feist's is distributed free of charge and includes both white pages and yellow pages. Feist and Rural compete vigorously for yellow pages advertising.

As the sole provider of telephone service in its service area, Rural obtains subscriber information quite easily. Persons desiring telephone service must apply to Rural and provide their names and addresses; Rural then assigns them a telephone number. Feist is not a telephone company, let alone one with monopoly status, and therefore lacks independent access to any subscriber information. To obtain white pages listings for its area-wide directory, Feist approached each of the 11 telephone companies operating in northwest Kansas and offered to pay for the right to use its white pages listings.

Of the 11 telephone companies, only Rural refused to license its listings to Feist. Rural's refusal created a problem for Feist, as omitting these listings would have left a gaping hole in its area-wide directory, rendering it less attractive to potential yellow pages advertisers. In a decision subsequent to that which we review here, the District Court determined that this was precisely the reason Rural refused to license its listings. The refusal was motivated by an unlawful purpose "to extend its monopoly in telephone service to a monopoly in yellow pages advertising." Rural Telephone Service Co. v. Feist Publications, Inc., 737 F.Supp. 610, 622 (Kan.1990).

Unable to license Rural's white pages listings, Feist used them without Rural's consent. Feist began by removing several thousand listings that fell outside the geographic range of its area-wide directory, then hired personnel to investigate the 4,935 that remained. These employees verified the data reported by Rural and sought to obtain additional information. As a result, a typical Feist listing includes the individual's street address; most of Rural's listings do not. Notwithstanding these additions, however, 1,309 of the 46,878 listings in Feist's 1983 directory were identical to listings in Rural's 1982-1983 white pages. App. 54 (P 15-16), 57. Four of these were fictitious listings that Rural had inserted into its directory to detect copying.

Rural sued for copyright infringement in the District Court for the District of Kansas taking the position that Feist, in compiling its own directory, could not use the information contained in Rural's white pages. Rural asserted that Feist's employees were obliged to travel door-to-door or conduct a telephone survey to discover the same information for themselves. Feist responded that such efforts were economically impractical and, in any event, unnecessary because the information copied was beyond the scope of copyright protection. The District Court granted summary judgment to Rural, explaining that "[c]ourts have consistently held that telephone directories are copyrightable" and citing a string of lower court decisions. 663 F.Supp. 214, 218 (1987). In an unpublished opinion, the Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit affirmed "for substantially the reasons given by the district court." App. to Pet. for Cert. 4a, judgt. order reported at 916 F.2d 718 (1990). We granted certiorari, 498 U.S. 808, 111 S.Ct. 40, 112 L.Ed.2d 17 (1990), to determine whether the copyright in Rural's directory protects the names, towns, and telephone numbers copied by Feist.

II.

This case concerns the interaction of two well-established propositions. The first is that facts are not copyrightable; the other, that compilations of facts generally are. Each of these propositions possesses an impeccable pedigree. That there can be no valid copyright in facts is universally understood. The most fundamental axiom of copyright law is that "[n]o author may copyright his ideas or the facts he narrates." Harper & Row, Publishers, Inc. v. Nation Enterprises, 471 U.S. 539, 556, 105 S.Ct. 2218, 2228, 85 L.Ed.2d 588 (1985). Rural wisely concedes this point, noting in its brief that "[f]acts and discoveries, of course, are not themselves subject to copyright protection." Brief for Respondent 24. At the same time, however, it is beyond dispute that compilations of facts are within the subject matter of copyright. Compilations were expressly mentioned in the Copyright Act of 1909, and again in the Copyright Act of 1976.

There is an undeniable tension between these two propositions. Many compilations consist of nothing but raw data--i.e., wholly factual information not accompanied by any original written expression. On what basis may one claim a copyright in such a work? Common sense tells us that 100 uncopyrightable facts do not magically change their status when gathered together in one place. Yet copyright law seems to contemplate that compilations that consist exclusively of facts are potentially within its scope.

The key to resolving the tension lies in understanding why facts are not copyrightable. The sine qua non of copyright is originality. To qualify for copyright protection, a work must be original to the author. See: Harper & Row, supra, at 547-549, 105 S.Ct., at 2223-2224. Original, as the term is used in copyright, means only that the work was independently created by the author (as opposed to copied from other works), and that it possesses at least some minimal degree of creativity. 1 M. Nimmer & D. Nimmer, Copyright ss 2.01[A], [B] (1990) (hereinafter Nimmer). To be sure, the requisite level of creativity is extremely low; even a slight amount will suffice. The vast majority of works make the grade quite easily, as they possess some creative spark, "no matter how crude, humble or obvious" it might be. Id., s 1.08[C] [1]. Originality does not signify novelty; a work may be original even though it closely resembles other works so long as the similarity is fortuitous, not the result of copying. To illustrate, assume that two poets, each ignorant of the other, compose identical poems. Neither work is novel, yet both are original and, hence, copyrightable. See: Sheldon v. Metro- Goldwyn Pictures Corp., 81 F.2d 49, 54 (CA2 1936).

Originality is a constitutional requirement. The source of Congress' power to enact copyright laws is Article I, s 8, cl. 8, of the Constitution, which authorizes Congress to "secur[e] for limited Times to Authors ... the exclusive Right to their respective Writings." In two decisions from the late 19th century-- The Trade-Mark Cases, 100 U.S. 82, 25 L.Ed. 550 (1879); and Burrow-Giles Lithographic Co. v. Sarony, 111 U.S. 53, 4 S.Ct. 279, 28 L.Ed. 349 (1884)--this Court defined the crucial terms "authors" and "writings." In so doing, the Court made it unmistakably clear that these terms presuppose a degree of originality.

In The Trade-Mark Cases, the Court addressed the constitutional scope of "writings." For a particular work to be classified "under the head of writings of authors," the Court determined, "originality is required." 100 U.S., at 94. The Court explained that originality requires independent creation plus a modicum of creativity: "[W]hile the word writings may be liberally construed, as it has been, to include original designs for engraving, prints, it is only such as are original, and are founded in the creative powers of the mind. The writings which are to be protected are the fruits of intellectual labor, embodied in the form of books, prints, engravings, and the like." Ibid.

In Burrow-Giles, the Court distilled the same requirement from the Constitution's use of the word "authors." The Court defined "author," in a constitutional sense, to mean "he to whom anything owes its origin; originator; maker." 111 U.S., at 58, 4 S.Ct., at 281 (internal quotation marks omitted). As in The Trade-Mark Cases, the Court emphasized the creative component of originality. It described copyright as being limited to "original intellectual conceptions of the author," 111 U.S., at 58, 4 S.Ct., at 281, and stressed the importance of requiring an author who accuses another of infringement to prove "the existence of those facts of originality, of intellectual production, of thought, and conception." Id., at 59-60, 4 S.Ct., at 281-282.

The originality requirement articulated in The Trade-Mark Cases and Burrow-Giles remains the touchstone of copyright protection today. See: Goldstein v. California, 412 U.S. 546, 561-562, 93 S.Ct. 2303, 2312, 37 L.Ed.2d 163 (1973). It is the very "premise of copyright law." Miller v. Universal City Studios, Inc., 650 F.2d 1365, 1368 (CA5 1981). Leading scholars agree on this point. As one pair of commentators succinctly puts it: "The originality requirement is constitutionally mandated for all works." Patterson & Joyce, Monopolizing the Law: The Scope of Copyright Protection for Law Reports and Statutory Compilations, 36 UCLA L.Rev. 719, 763, n. 155 (1989) (hereinafter Patterson & Joyce). Accord, id., at 759-760, and n. 140; Nimmer s 1.06[A] ("[O]riginality is a statutory as well as a constitutional requirement"); id., s 1.08[C][1] ("[A] modicum of intellectual labor ... clearly constitutes an essential constitutional element").

It is this bedrock principle of copyright that mandates the law's seemingly disparate treatment of facts and factual compilations. "No one may claim originality as to facts." Id., s 2.11[A], p. 2-157. This is because facts do not owe their origin to an act of authorship. The distinction is one between creation and discovery: The first person to find and report a particular fact has not created the fact; he or she has merely discovered its existence. To borrow from Burrow-Giles, one who discovers a fact is not its "maker" or "originator." 111 U.S., at 58, 4 S.Ct., at 281. "The discoverer merely finds and records." Nimmer

s 2.03[E]. Census takers, for example, do not "create" the population figures that emerge from their efforts; in a sense, they copy these figures from the world around them. Denicola, Copyright in Collections of Facts: A Theory for the Protection of Nonfiction Literary Works, 81 Colum.L.Rev. 516, 525 (1981) (hereinafter Denicola). Census data therefore do not trigger copyright because these data are not "original" in the constitutional sense. Nimmer s 2.03[E]. The same is true of all facts--scientific, historical, biographical, and news of the day. "[T]hey may not be copyrighted and are part of the public domain available to every person." Miller, supra, at 1369.

Factual compilations, on the other hand, may possess the requisite originality. The compilation author typically chooses which facts to include, in what order to place them, and how to arrange the collected data so that they may be used effectively by readers. These choices as to selection and arrangement, so long as they are made independently by the compiler and entail a minimal degree of creativity, are sufficiently original that Congress may protect such compilations through the copyright laws. Nimmer ss 2.11[D], 3.03; Denicola 523, n. 38. Thus, even a directory that contains absolutely no protectible written expression, only facts, meets the constitutional minimum for copyright protection if it features an original selection or arrangement. See: Harper & Row, 471 U.S., at 547, 105 S.Ct., at 2223. Accord, Nimmer s 3.03.

This protection is subject to an important limitation. The mere fact that a work is copyrighted does not mean that every element of the work may be protected. Originality remains the sine qua non of copyright; accordingly, copyright protection may extend only to those components of a work that are original to the author. Patterson & Joyce 800-802; Ginsburg, Creation and Commercial Value: Copyright Protection of Works of Information, 90 Colum.L.Rev. 1865, 1868, and n. 12 (1990) (hereinafter Ginsburg). Thus, if the compilation author clothes facts with an original collocation of words, he or she may be able to claim a copyright in this written expression. Others may copy the underlying facts from the publication, but not the precise words used to present them. In Harper & Row, for example, we explained that President Ford could not prevent others from copying bare historical facts from his autobiography, see: 471 U.S., at 556-557, 105 S.Ct., at 2228-2229, but that he could prevent others from copying his "subjective descriptions and portraits of public figures." Id., at 563, 105 S.Ct., at 2232. Where the compilation author adds no written expression but rather lets the facts speak for themselves, the expressive element is more elusive. The only conceivable expression is the manner in which the compiler has selected and arranged the facts. Thus, if the selection and arrangement are original, these elements of the work are eligible for copyright protection. See Patry, Copyright in Compilations of Facts (or Why the "White Pages" Are Not Copyrightable), 12 Com. & Law 37, 64 (Dec. 1990) (hereinafter Patry). No matter how original the format, however, the facts themselves do not become original through association. See Patterson & Joyce 776.

This inevitably means that the copyright in a factual compilation is thin. Notwithstanding a valid copyright, a subsequent compiler remains free to use the facts contained in another's publication to aid in preparing a competing work, so long as the competing work does not feature the same selection and arrangement. As one commentator explains it: "[N]o matter how much original authorship the work displays, the facts and ideas it exposes are free for the taking.... [T]he very same facts and ideas may be divorced from the context imposed by the author, and restated or reshuffled by second comers, even if the author was the first to discover the facts or to propose the ideas." Ginsburg 1868.

It may seem unfair that much of the fruit of the compiler's labor may be used by others without compensation. As Justice Brennan has correctly observed, however, this is not "some unforeseen byproduct of a statutory scheme." Harper & Row, 471 U.S., at 589, 105 S.Ct., at 2245 (dissenting opinion). It is, rather, "the essence of copyright," ibid., and a constitutional requirement. The primary objective of copyright is not to reward the labor of authors, but "[t]o promote the Progress of Science and useful Arts." Art. I, s 8, cl. 8. Accord, Twentieth Century Music Corp. v. Aiken, 422 U.S. 151, 156, 95 S.Ct. 2040, 2044, 45 L.Ed.2d 84 (1975). To this end, copyright assures authors the right to their original expression, but encourages others to build freely upon the ideas and information conveyed by a work. Harper & Row, supra, 471 U.S., at 556-557, 105 S.Ct., at 2228- 2229. This principle, known as the idea/expression or fact/expression dichotomy, applies to all works of authorship. As applied to a factual compilation, assuming the absence of original written expression, only the compiler's selection and arrangement may be protected; the raw facts may be copied at will. This result is neither unfair nor unfortunate. It is the means by which copyright advances the progress of science and art.

This Court has long recognized that the fact/expression dichotomy limits severely the scope of protection in fact-based works. More than a century ago, the Court observed: "The very object of publishing a book on science or the useful arts is to communicate to the world the useful knowledge which it contains. But this object would be frustrated if the knowledge could not be used without incurring the guilt of piracy of the book." Baker v. Selden, 101 U.S. 99, 103, 25 L.Ed. 841 (1880). We reiterated this point in Harper & Row:

"[N]o author may copyright facts or ideas. The copyright is limited to those aspects of the work--termed 'expression'--that display the stamp of the author's originality.

"[C]opyright does not prevent subsequent users from copying from a prior author's work those constituent elements that are not original--for example ... facts, or materials in the public domain--as long as such use does not unfairly appropriate the author's original contributions." 471 U.S., at 547-548, 105 S.Ct., at 2223-2224 (citation omitted).

This, then, resolves the doctrinal tension: Copyright treats facts and factual compilations in a wholly consistent manner. Facts, whether alone or as part of a compilation, are not original and therefore may not be copyrighted. A factual compilation is eligible for copyright if it features an original selection or arrangement of facts, but the copyright is limited to the particular selection or arrangement. In no event may copyright extend to the facts themselves.

B.

As we have explained, originality is a constitutionally mandated prerequisite for copyright protection. The Court's decisions announcing this rule predate the Copyright Act of 1909, but ambiguous language in the 1909 Act caused some lower courts temporarily to lose sight of this requirement.

The 1909 Act embodied the originality requirement, but not as clearly as it might have. See Nimmer s 2.01. The subject matter of copyright was set out in ss 3 and 4 of the Act. Section 4 stated that copyright was available to "all the writings of an author." 35 Stat. 1076. By using the words "writings" and "author" -- the same words used in Article I, s 8, of the Constitution and defined by the Court in The Trade-Mark Cases and Burrow- Giles -- the statute necessarily incorporated the originality requirement articulated in the Court's decisions. It did so implicitly, however, thereby leaving room for error.

Section 3 was similarly ambiguous. It stated that the copyright in a work protected only "the copyrightable component parts of the work." It thus stated an important copyright principle, but failed to identify the specific characteristic--originality--that determined which component parts of a work were copyrightable and which were not.

Most courts construed the 1909 Act correctly, notwithstanding the less-than- perfect statutory language. They understood from this Court's decisions that there could be no copyright without originality. See Patterson & Joyce 760- 761. As explained in the Nimmer treatise: "The 1909 Act neither defined originality, nor even expressly required that a work be 'original' in order to command protection. However, the courts uniformly inferred the requirement from the fact that copyright protection may only be claimed by 'authors'.... It was reasoned that since an author is 'the ... creator, originator' it follows that a work is not the product of an author unless the work is original." Nimmer s 2.01 (footnotes omitted) (citing cases).

But some courts misunderstood the statute. See, e.g., Leon v. Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co., 91 F.2d 484 (CA9 1937); Jeweler's Circular Publishing Co. v. Keystone Publishing Co., 281 F. 83 (CA2 1922). These courts ignored ss 3 and 4, focusing their attention instead on s 5 of the Act. Section 5, however, was purely technical in nature: It provided that a person seeking to register a work should indicate on the application the type of work, and it listed 14 categories under which the work might fall. One of these categories was "[b]ooks, including composite and cyclopaedic works, directories, gazetteers, and other compilations." s 5(a). Section 5 did not purport to say that all compilations were automatically copyrightable. Indeed, it expressly disclaimed any such function, pointing out that "the subject- matter of copyright [i]s defined in section four." Nevertheless, the fact that factual compilations were mentioned specifically in s 5 led some courts to infer erroneously that directories and the like were copyrightable per se, "without any further or precise showing of original--personal--authorship." Ginsburg 1895.

Making matters worse, these courts developed a new theory to justify the protection of factual compilations. Known alternatively as "sweat of the brow" or "industrious collection," the underlying notion was that copyright was a reward for the hard work that went into compiling facts. The classic formulation of the doctrine appeared in Jeweler's Circular Publishing Co., 281 F., at 88:

"The right to copyright a book upon which one has expended labor in its preparation does not depend upon whether the materials which he has collected consist or not of matters which are publici juris, or whether such materials show literary skill or originality, either in thought or in language, or anything more than industrious collection. The man who goes through the streets of a town and puts down the names of each of the inhabitants, with their occupations and their street number, acquires material of which he is the author."

The "sweat of the brow" doctrine had numerous flaws, the most glaring being that it extended copyright protection in a compilation beyond selection and arrangement--the compiler's original contributions--to the facts themselves. Under the doctrine, the only defense to infringement was independent creation. A subsequent compiler was "not entitled to take one word of information previously published," but rather had to "independently wor[k] out the matter for himself, so as to arrive at the same result from the same common sources of information." Id., at 88-89 (internal quotations omitted). "Sweat of the brow" courts thereby eschewed the most fundamental axiom of copyright law--that no one may copyright facts or ideas. See Miller v. Universal City Studios, Inc., 650 F.2d, at 1372 (criticizing "sweat of the brow" courts because "ensur [ing] that later writers obtain the facts independently ... is precisely the scope of protection given ... copyrighted matter, and the law is clear that facts are not entitled to such protection"). Decisions of this Court applying the 1909 Act make clear that the statute did not permit the "sweat of the brow" approach. The best example is International News Service v. Associated Press, 248 U.S. 215, 39 S.Ct. 68, 63 L.Ed. 211 (1918). In that decision, the Court stated unambiguously that the 1909 Act conferred copyright protection only on those elements of a work that were original to the author. International News Service had conceded taking news reported by Associated Press and publishing it in its own newspapers. Recognizing that s 5 of the Act specifically mentioned " 'periodicals, including newspapers,' " s 5(b), the Court acknowledged that news articles were copyrightable. Id., at 234, 39 S.Ct., at 70. It flatly rejected, however, the notion that the copyright in an article extended to the factual information it contained: "[T]he news element--the information respecting current events contained in the literary production--is not the creation of the writer, but is a report of matters that ordinarily are publici juris; it is the history of the day." > Ibid. (FootNote: The Court ultimately rendered judgment for Associated Press on noncopyright grounds that are not relevant here. See 248 U.S., at 235, 241-242, 39 S.Ct., at 71, 73-74.)

Without a doubt, the "sweat of the brow" doctrine flouted basic copyright principles. Throughout history, copyright law has "recognize[d] a greater need to disseminate factual works than works of fiction or fantasy." Harper & Row, 471 U.S., at 563, 105 S.Ct., at 2232. Accord, Gorman, Fact or Fancy: The Implications for Copyright, 29 J. Copyright Soc. 560, 563 (1982). But "sweat of the brow" courts took a contrary view; they handed out proprietary interests in facts and declared that authors are absolutely precluded from saving time and effort by relying upon the facts contained in prior works. In truth, "[i]t is just such wasted effort that the proscription against the copyright of ideas and facts ... [is] designed to prevent." Rosemont Enterprises, Inc. v. Random House, Inc., 366 F.2d 303, 310 (CA2 1966), cert. denied 385 U.S. 1009, 87 S.Ct. 714, 17 L.Ed.2d 546 (1967). "Protection for the fruits of such research ... may in certain circumstances be available under a theory of unfair competition. But to accord copyright protection on this basis alone distorts basic copyright principles in that it creates a monopoly in public domain materials without the necessary justification of protecting and encouraging the creation of 'writings' by 'authors.' " Nimmer s 3.04, p. 3-23 (footnote omitted).

C.

"Sweat of the brow" decisions did not escape the attention of the Copyright Office. When Congress decided to overhaul the copyright statute and asked the Copyright Office to study existing problems, see Mills Music, Inc. v. Snyder, 469 U.S. 153, 159, 105 S.Ct. 638, 642, 83 L.Ed.2d 556 (1985), the Copyright Office promptly recommended that Congress clear up the confusion in the lower courts as to the basic standards of copyrightability. The Register of Copyrights explained in his first report to Congress that "originality" was a "basic requisit[e]" of copyright under the 1909 Act, but that "the absence of any reference to [originality] in the statute seems to have led to misconceptions as to what is copyrightable matter." Report of the Register of Copyrights on the General Revision of the U.S. Copyright Law, 87th Cong., 1st Sess., p. 9 (H. Judiciary Comm. Print 1961). The Register suggested making the originality requirement explicit. Ibid.

Congress took the Register's advice. In enacting the Copyright Act of 1976, Congress dropped the reference to "all the writings of an author" and replaced it with the phrase "original works of authorship." 17 U.S.C. s 102(a). In making explicit the originality requirement,

Congress announced that it was merely clarifying existing law: "The two fundamental criteria of copyright protection [are] originality and fixation in tangible form.... The phrase 'original works of authorship,' which is purposely left undefined, is intended to incorporate without change the standard of originality established by the courts under the present [1909] copyright statute." H.R.Rep. No. 94-1476, p. 51 (1976) (emphasis added) (hereinafter H.R.Rep.); S.Rep. No. 94-473, p. 50 (1975), U.S.Code Cong. & Admin.News 1976, pp. 5659, 5664 (emphasis added) (hereinafter S.Rep.). This sentiment was echoed by the Copyright Office: "Our intention here is to maintain the established standards of originality...." Supplementary Report of the Register of Copyrights on the General Revision of U.S. Copyright Law, 89th Cong., 1st Sess., pt. 6, p. 3 (H. Judiciary Comm. Print 1965) (emphasis added).

To ensure that the mistakes of the "sweat of the brow" courts would not be repeated, Congress took additional measures. For example, s 3 of the 1909 Act had stated that copyright protected only the "copyrightable component parts" of a work, but had not identified originality as the basis for distinguishing those component parts that were copyrightable from those that were not. The 1976 Act deleted this section and replaced it with s 102(b), which identifies specifically those elements of a work for which copyright is not available: "In no case does copyright protection for an original work of authorship extend to any idea, procedure, process, system, method of operation, concept, principle, or discovery, regardless of the form in which it is described, explained, illustrated, or embodied in such work." Section 102(b) is universally understood to prohibit any copyright in facts. Harper & Row, supra, at 547, 556, 105 S.Ct., at 2223, 2228. Accord, Nimmer s 2.03[E] (equating facts with "discoveries"). As with s 102(a), Congress emphasized that s 102(b) did not change the law, but merely clarified it: "Section 102(b) in no way enlarges or contracts the scope of copyright protection under the present law. Its purpose is to restate ... that the basic dichotomy between expression and idea remains unchanged." H.R.Rep., at 57; S.Rep., at 54, U.S.Code Cong. & Admin.News 1976, p. 5670.

Congress took another step to minimize confusion by deleting the specific mention of "directories ... and other compilations" in s 5 of the 1909 Act. As mentioned, this section had led some courts to conclude that directories were copyrightable per se and that every element of a directory was protected. In its place, Congress enacted two new provisions. First, to make clear that compilations were not copyrightable per se, Congress provided a definition of the term "compilation." Second, to make clear that the copyright in a compilation did not extend to the facts themselves, Congress enacted s 103.

The definition of "compilation" is found in s 101 of the 1976 Act. It defines a "compilation" in the copyright sense as "a work formed by the collection and assembling of preexisting materials or of data that are selected, coordinated, or arranged in such a way that the resulting work as a whole constitutes an original work of authorship" (emphasis added).

The purpose of the statutory definition is to emphasize that collections of facts are not copyrightable per se. It conveys this message through its tripartite structure, as emphasized above by the italics. The statute identifies three distinct elements and requires each to be met for a work to qualify as a copyrightable compilation: (1) the collection and assembly of pre-existing material, facts, or data; (2) the selection, coordination, or arrangement of those materials; and (3) the creation, by virtue of the particular selection, coordination, or arrangement, of an "original" work of authorship. "[T]his tripartite conjunctive structure is self-evident, and should be assumed to 'accurately express the legislative purpose.' " Patry 51, quoting Mills Music, 469 U.S., at 164, 105 S.Ct., at 645.

At first glance, the first requirement does not seem to tell us much. It merely describes what one normally thinks of as a compilation -- a collection of pre-existing material, facts, or data. What makes it significant is that it is not the sole requirement. It is not enough for copyright purposes that an author collects and assembles facts. To satisfy the statutory definition, the work must get over two additional hurdles. In this way, the plain language indicates that not every collection of facts receives copyright protection. Otherwise, there would be a period after "data."

The third requirement is also illuminating. It emphasizes that a compilation, like any other work, is copyrightable only if it satisfies the originality requirement ("an original work of authorship"). Although s 102 states plainly that the originality requirement applies to all works, the point was emphasized with regard to compilations to ensure that courts would not repeat the mistake of the "sweat of the brow" courts by concluding that fact-based works are treated differently and measured by some other standard. As Congress explained it, the goal was to "make plain that the criteria of copyrightable subject matter stated in section 102 apply with full force to works ... containing preexisting material." H.R.Rep., at 57; S.Rep., at 55, U.S.Code Cong. & Admin.News 1976, p. 5670.

The key to the statutory definition is the second requirement. It instructs courts that, in determining whether a fact-based work is an original work of authorship, they should focus on the manner in which the collected facts have been selected, coordinated, and arranged. This is a straightforward application of the originality requirement. Facts are never original, so the compilation author can claim originality, if at all, only in the way the facts are presented. To that end, the statute dictates that the principal focus should be on whether the selection, coordination, and arrangement are sufficiently original to merit protection.

Not every selection, coordination, or arrangement will pass muster. This is plain from the statute. It states that, to merit protection, the facts must be selected, coordinated, or arranged "in such a way" as to render the work as a whole original. This implies that some "ways" will trigger copyright, but that others will not. See Patry 57, and n. 76. Otherwise, the phrase "in such a way" is meaningless and Congress should have defined "compilation" simply as "a work formed by the collection and assembly of preexisting materials or data that are selected, coordinated, or arranged." That Congress did not do so is dispositive. In accordance with "the established principle that a court should give effect, if possible, to every clause and word of a statute," Moskal v. United States, 498 U.S. 103, 109- 110, 111 S.Ct. 461, 466, 112 L.Ed.2d 449 (1990) (internal quotation marks omitted), we conclude that the statute envisions that there will be some fact- based works in which the selection, coordination, and arrangement are not sufficiently original to trigger copyright protection.

As discussed earlier, however, the originality requirement is not particularly stringent. A compiler may settle upon a selection or arrangement that others have used; novelty is not required. Originality requires only that the author make the selection or arrangement independently (i.e., without copying that selection or arrangement from another work), and that it display some minimal level of creativity. Presumably, the vast majority of compilations will pass this test, but not all will. There remains a narrow category of works in which the creative spark is utterly lacking or so trivial as to be virtually nonexistent. See generally Bleistein v. Donaldson Lithographing Co., 188 U.S. 239, 251, 23 S.Ct. 298, 300, 47 L.Ed. 460 (1903) (referring to "the narrowest and most obvious limits"). Such works are incapable of sustaining a valid copyright. Nimmer s 2.01[B].

Even if a work qualifies as a copyrightable compilation, it receives only limited protection. This is the point of s 103 of the Act. Section 103 explains that "[t]he subject matter of copyright ... includes compilations," s 103(a), but that copyright protects only the author's original contributions--not the facts or information conveyed:

"The copyright in a compilation ... extends only to the material contributed by the author of such work, as distinguished from the preexisting material employed in the work, and does not imply any exclusive right in the preexisting material." s 103(b).

As s 103 makes clear, copyright is not a tool by which a compilation author may keep others from using the facts or data he or she has collected. "The most important point here is one that is commonly misunderstood today: copyright ... has no effect one way or the other on the copyright or public domain status of the preexisting material." H.R.Rep., at 57; S.Rep., at 55, U.S.Code Cong. & Admin. News 1976, p. 5670. The 1909 Act did not require, as "sweat of the brow" courts mistakenly assumed, that each subsequent compiler must start from scratch and is precluded from relying on research undertaken by another. See, e.g., Jeweler's Circular Publishing Co., 281 F., at 88-89. Rather, the facts contained in existing works may be freely copied because copyright protects only the elements that owe their origin to the compiler--the selection, coordination, and arrangement of facts.

In summary, the 1976 revisions to the Copyright Act leave no doubt that originality, not "sweat of the brow," is the touchstone of copyright protection in directories and other fact-based works. Nor is there any doubt that the same was true under the 1909 Act. The 1976 revisions were a direct response to the Copyright Office's concern that many lower courts had misconstrued this basic principle, and Congress emphasized repeatedly that the purpose of the revisions was to clarify, not change, existing law. The revisions explain with painstaking clarity that copyright requires originality, s 102(a); that facts are never original, s 102(b); that the copyright in a compilation does not extend to the facts it contains, s 103(b); and that a compilation is copyrightable only to the extent that it features an original selection, coordination, or arrangement, s 101.

The 1976 revisions have proven largely successful in steering courts in the right direction. A good example is Miller v. Universal City Studios, Inc., 650 F.2d, at 1369-1370: "A copyright in a directory ... is properly viewed as resting on the originality of the selection and arrangement of the factual material, rather than on the industriousness of the efforts to develop the information. Copyright protection does not extend to the facts themselves, and the mere use of information contained in a directory without a substantial copying of the format does not constitute infringement" (citation omitted). Additionally, the Second Circuit, which almost 70 years ago issued the classic formulation of the "sweat of the brow" doctrine in Jeweler's Circular Publishing Co., has now fully repudiated the reasoning of that decision. See, e.g., Financial Information, Inc. v. Moody's Investors Service, Inc., 808 F.2d 204, 207 (CA2 1986), cert. denied, 484 U.S. 820, 108 S.Ct. 79, 98 L.Ed.2d 42 (1987); Financial Information, Inc. v. Moody's Investors Service, Inc., 751 F.2d 501, 510 (CA2 1984) (Newman, J., concurring); Hoehling v. Universal City Studios, Inc., 618 F.2d 972, 979 (CA2 1980). Even those scholars who believe that "industrious collection" should be rewarded seem to recognize that this is beyond the scope of existing copyright law. See Denicola 516 ("[T]he very vocabulary of copyright is ill suited to analyzing property rights in works of nonfiction"); id., at 520-521, 525; Ginsburg 1867, 1870.

III.

There is no doubt that Feist took from the white pages of Rural's directory a substantial amount of factual information. At a minimum, Feist copied the names, towns, and telephone numbers of 1,309 of Rural's subscribers. Not all copying, however, is copyright infringement. To establish infringement, two elements must be proven: (1) ownership of a valid copyright, and (2) copying of constituent elements of the work that are original. See Harper & Row, 471 U.S., at 548, 105 S.Ct., at 2224. The first element is not at issue here; Feist appears to concede that Rural's directory, considered as a whole, is subject to a valid copyright because it contains some foreword text, as well as original material in its yellow pages advertisements. See Brief for Petitioner 18; Pet. for Cert. 9.

The question is whether Rural has proved the second element. In other words, did Feist, by taking 1,309 names, towns, and telephone numbers from Rural's white pages, copy anything that was "original" to Rural? Certainly, the raw data does not satisfy the originality requirement. Rural may have been the first to discover and report the names, towns, and telephone numbers of its subscribers, but this data does not " 'ow[e] its origin' " to Rural. Burrow-Giles, 111 U.S., at 58, 4 S.Ct., at 281. Rather, these bits of information are uncopyrightable facts; they existed before Rural reported them and would have continued to exist if Rural had never published a telephone directory. The originality requirement "rule[s] out protecting ... names, addresses, and telephone numbers of which the plaintiff by no stretch of the imagination could be called the author." Patterson & Joyce 776.

Rural essentially concedes the point by referring to the names, towns, and telephone numbers as "preexisting material." Brief for Respondent 17. Section 103(b) states explicitly that the copyright in a compilation does not extend to "the preexisting material employed in the work."

The question that remains is whether Rural selected, coordinated, or arranged these uncopyrightable facts in an original way. As mentioned, originality is not a stringent standard; it does not require that facts be presented in an innovative or surprising way. It is equally true, however, that the selection and arrangement of facts cannot be so mechanical or routine as to require no creativity whatsoever. The standard of originality is low, but it does exist. See Patterson & Joyce 760, n. 144 ("While this requirement is sometimes characterized as modest, or a low threshold, it is not without effect") (internal quotation marks omitted; citations omitted). As this Court has explained, the Constitution mandates some minimal degree of creativity, see The Trade-Mark Cases, 100 U.S., at 94; and an author who claims infringement must prove "the existence of ... intellectual production, of thought, and conception." > Burrow-Giles, supra, 111 U.S., at 59-60, 4 S.Ct., at 281-282.

The selection, coordination, and arrangement of Rural's white pages do not satisfy the minimum constitutional standards for copyright protection. As mentioned at the outset, Rural's white pages are entirely typical. Persons desiring telephone service in Rural's service area fill out an application and Rural issues them a telephone number. In preparing its white pages, Rural simply takes the data provided by its subscribers and lists it alphabetically by surname. The end product is a garden-variety white pages directory, devoid of even the slightest trace of creativity.

Rural's selection of listings could not be more obvious: It publishes the most basic information--name, town, and telephone number--about each person who applies to it for telephone service. This is "selection" of a sort, but it lacks the modicum of creativity necessary to transform mere selection into copyrightable expression. Rural expended sufficient effort to make the white pages directory useful, but insufficient creativity to make it original.

We note in passing that the selection featured in Rural's white pages may also fail the originality requirement for another reason. Feist points out that Rural did not truly "select" to publish the names and telephone numbers of its subscribers; rather, it was required to do so by the Kansas Corporation Commission as part of its monopoly franchise. See 737 F.Supp., at 612. Accordingly, one could plausibly conclude that this selection was dictated by state law, not by Rural.

Nor can Rural claim originality in its coordination and arrangement of facts. The white pages do nothing more than list Rural's subscribers in alphabetical order. This arrangement may, technically speaking, owe its origin to Rural; no one disputes that Rural undertook the task of alphabetizing the names itself. But there is nothing remotely creative about arranging names alphabetically in a white pages directory. It is an age-old practice, firmly rooted in tradition and so commonplace that it has come to be expected as a matter of course. See Brief for Information Industry Association et al. as Amici Curiae 10 (alphabetical arrangement "is universally observed in directories published by local exchange telephone companies"). It is not only unoriginal, it is practically inevitable. This time-honored tradition does not possess the minimal creative spark required by the Copyright Act and the Constitution.

We conclude that the names, towns, and telephone numbers copied by Feist were not original to Rural and therefore were not protected by the copyright in Rural's combined white and yellow pages directory. As a constitutional matter, copyright protects only those constituent elements of a work that possess more than a de minimis quantum of creativity. Rural's white pages, limited to basic subscriber information and arranged alphabetically, fall short of the mark. As a statutory matter, 17 U.S.C. s 101 does not afford protection from copying to a collection of facts that are selected, coordinated, and arranged in a way that utterly lacks originality. Given that some works must fail, we cannot imagine a more likely candidate. Indeed, were we to hold that Rural's white pages pass muster, it is hard to believe that any collection of facts could fail.

Because Rural's white pages lack the requisite originality, Feist's use of the listings cannot constitute infringement. This decision should not be construed as demeaning Rural's efforts in compiling its directory, but rather as making clear that copyright rewards originality, not effort. As this Court noted more than a century ago, " 'great praise may be due to the plaintiffs for their industry and enterprise in publishing this paper, yet the law does not contemplate their being rewarded in this way.' " Baker v. Selden, 101 U.S., at 105.

The judgment of the Court of Appeals is Reversed.

Justice BLACKMUN concurs in the judgment.

I think you should read more:

This Court has long recognized that the fact/expression dichotomy limits severely the scope of protection in fact-based works. More than a century ago, the Court observed: "The very object of publishing a book on science or the useful arts is to communicate to the world the useful knowledge which it contains. But this object would be frustrated

if the knowledge could not be used without incurring the guilt of piracy of the book." Baker v. Selden, 101 U.S. 99, 103, 25 L.Ed. 841 (1880). We reiterated this point in Harper & Row:

"[N]o author may copyright facts or ideas. The copyright is limited to those aspects of the work--termed 'expression'--that display the stamp of the author's originality.

"[C]opyright does not prevent subsequent users from copying from a prior author's work those constituent elements that are not original--for example ... facts, or materials in the public domain--as long as such use does not unfairly appropriate the author's original contributions." 471 U.S., at 547-548, 105 S.Ct., at 2223-2224 (citation

It is this bedrock principle of copyright that mandates the law's seemingly disparate treatment of facts and factual compilations. "No one may claim originality as to facts." Id. 2.11[A], p. 2-157. This is because facts do not owe their origin to an act of authorship. The distinction is one between creation and discovery: the first person to find and report a particular fact has not created the fact; he or she has merely discovered its existence. To borrow from Burrow-Giles, one who discovers a fact is not its "maker" or "originator." 111 U.S., at 58. "The discoverer merely finds and records." Nimmer 2.03[E]. Census-takers, for example, do not "create" the population figures that emerge from their efforts; in a sense, they copy these figures from the world around them. Denicola, Copyright in Collections of Facts: A Theory for the Protection of Nonfiction Literary Works, 81 Colum.L.Rev. 516, 525 (1981) (hereinafter Denicola). Census data therefore do not trigger copyright, because these data are not "original" in the constitutional sense. Nimmer [begin page 348] 2.03[E]. The same is true of all facts - scientific, historical, biographical, and news of the day. "[T]hey may not be copyrighted, and are part of the public domain available to every person." Miller, supra, at 1369.

A number of passages in the New Testament are applicable to growing out of and overcoming masturbation as we seek single sightedness, with purity of heart and motive in following Jesus the Lord.

"Do not yield your members to sin as instruments of wickedness, but yield yourselves to God as men who have been brought from death to life, and your members to God as instruments of righteousness." (Rom. 6:13)

"...make straight paths for your feet, so that what is lame may not be put out of joint but rather be healed. Strive for peace with all men, and for the holiness without which no one will see the Lord." (Heb.12:13,14)

"But fornication and all impurity or covetousness must not even be named among you, as is fitting among saints...Be sure of this, that no fornicator or impure man, or one who is covetous (that is, an idolater), has any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God. Let no one deceive you with empty words, for it is because of these things that the wrath of God comes upon the sons of disobedience...Take no part in the unfruitful works of darkness, but instead expose them. For it is a shame even to speak of the things that they do in secret; but when anything is exposed by the light it becomes visible, for anything that becomes visible is light." (Eph. 5:3-13)

"If then you have been raised with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated at the right hand of God. Set your minds on things that are above, not on things that are on earth. For you have died, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ who is our life appears, then you also will appear with him in glory. Put to death therefore what is earthly in you: fornication, impurity, passion, evil desire, and covetousness, which is idolatry. On account of these the wrath of God is coming." (Col. 3:1-6)

BWA HAHAHAHAHAHA!!! Genius Markie Morgan and genius Billy Smith were both redirected to the trash bin of alt.test and never knew it.

Markie, stop using someone else's email addy in your Reply-To header or else lose your ISP. It violates their TOS.

Eric,

As you know, it's been 133 days since it's rained in the Superstition Mountains. But that's just a blink of an eye in comparison to how long the K4YZ/KB9RQZ/N9OGL/AB8MQ Sh!tstorm has raged here on rrap.

Peace, brother!

not amusing at all. that is the max limit of my "read articles" buffer here.
besides, anything longer ceases to be relevant (does the term "old news" mean anything?)

I started at least 2. they died on the vine 9and yeah, that was substantially longer than 10 days ago).

you don't like it? start one yourself. otherwise, shut your pie hole and find something more legitimate to do.
